

HOOVER AND COOLIDGE IN 2ND CONFAB

President-Elect Faces Pressure from Leaders for Extra Session

Washington—(AP)—President-Elect Hoover called at the White House Wednesday for a second general discussion with President-Coolidge of the various problems facing the present and next administrations.

Additional pressure for an extra session of the seventy-first congress to enact farm relief and tariff revision legislation faced President-Elect Hoover as he set out Wednesday upon his third round of conference with Republican party leaders on Capitol Hill.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who had at least on an engagement list of sufficient length to keep Mr. Hoover busy from 9:30 in the forenoon until early evening, was armed with arguments to buttress the views already presented by Senator Borah of Idaho and some prominent house members in favor of the convening of the new congress in the early spring.

In addition a committee of four had been selected by thirty of the thirty-two members of the Pennsylvania delegation in the house to present a formal resolution urging a special session. The resolution, adopted late Tuesday proposed no specific time for the summoning of the new congress to Washington, merely setting forth that the call be issued as soon as practicable.

Pennsylvania was one of the first of the states sending uninstructed delegations to the Kansas City convention to declare for the nomination of Mr. Hoover. Consequently it is to be expected that the action of its congressional delegation will carry considerable weight with the president-elect.

BORAH, BROOKHART VIEWS

Mr. Hoover also will give careful consideration to the recommendation of Senators Brookhart and Borah, who not only stood in the front ranks of his campaign staff group, but also have given their influence to the fundamental of the agricultural program which he outlined and presented his cause to the voters of the country.

The major features of this program are the creation of a federal farm board of representative farmers to be clothed with authority and supplied with resources to build up farmer-owned and farmer-controlled corporations to take care of crop surpluses and such increases in tariff duties as will give agriculture the same measure of protection as other industries.

Talk about an extra session was not to occupy all of Mr. Hoover's time, however, as he had arranged to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the Better Homes association, of which he was formerly president and to receive several old friends at his temporary headquarters.

Now that the program for the inauguration has been definitely fixed, the usual avalanche of requests for seats on the platform to be erected around the east entrance to the capital is beginning to pour in.

A request for a sizeable number of seats has come from the British government through the embassy here for the use of a detachment of Australian Naval cadets which will be in the capital on March 4.

PSEUDO ARTIST IS GIVEN LONG TERM

Man Who Attacked Model in Illinois Must Serve 25 Years in Prison

Waukegan, Ill.—(AP)—A 25 year term in the state penitentiary was sentenced David Ackerman Wednesday for a criminal attack on Miss Margaret Smith.

A jury in circuit Judge Claire C. Edwards' court deliberated five hours Tuesday night and found the 41-year-old pseudo artist of Waukegan guilty of having attacked Miss Smith June 4, last on the Lake Forest estate of A. D. Lasker.

As the verdict was read Ackerman broke into sobs, his head bowed in his mother's lap. Mrs. Natalie Ackerman, his mother and Mabel, his wife, also were in tears as they vainly attempted to soothe him.

Ackerman and Miss Smith had testified during the trial that he had called at her home in Chicago, representing himself as an artist and induced her to pose for him in the woods at Lake Forest.

She was, he told her, to be his model for a picture to be entitled "The Captive." After reaching the woods she was strung to a stake with ropes. The testimony of both had concurred up to this point but Miss Smith related how Ackerman then danced around her waving an ax and shouting he was a moron. He threatened to slay her if she resisted.

Ackerman, however, said "It was all part of a game. A game that I was playing and that she also was playing." He denied threatening her.

Ackerman was captured by police in Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 5, when he tried to persuade a policeman to pose for him.

500 PUPILS STILL AWAY FROM CLASSES

Flu Situation Has Improved but Nurses Still Urging Care

With a decrease in the number of absences from over 500 on Monday to 284 on Wednesday, public school officials are of the opinion that the influenza situation is much improved and that within a few days the attendance will be back to normal.

However, the school nurses warn against too much optimism, and urge that parents exercise as much care now as they did when the epidemic was at its height. No pupils with colds will be permitted to remain in school, and a close supervision will be kept in all schools until the siege of colds and influenza is completely under control.

The 284 pupils absent on Wednesday covers reports from 11 of the 12 public schools in the city, there being no report from the Franklin school. According to Miss Mary Orison, school nurse, 284 absences is almost a normal situation, and the absence of a number of kindergarten children because of the cold weather is accountable for a great part of the 284. The number of absences from each school was as follows: Lincoln 20, Jefferson 31, First Ward 37, McKinley 29, McKinley Junior high 9, Richmond 6, Wilson Junior high 14, Roosevelt Junior high 16, Columbus 25, Washington 52, and high school 45.

Herman J. Kamps, 38, county clerk for five years from 1918 to 1922, died about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning at his home, 1200 S. Lawton, from an infection of the larynx. He had been under the care of a physician since New Year's day but his condition was not regarded as critical until a short time before his death. As late as 10 o'clock Tuesday night he was resting easily and apparently was recovering. After 5 o'clock Wednesday morning he began to sink rapidly and died a few minutes before 7 o'clock.

Mr. Kamps was a resident of Appleton practically all his life. After leaving school he entered the office of the register of deeds as deputy under B. J. Zuehlke and following the election of William F. Wolf, Black Creek, as county clerk, he was deputy county clerk for five years, succeeding Mr. Wolf as county clerk when the latter resigned in 1918. He was reelected the following years, serving until Dec. 31, 1922. Since leaving the courthouse Mr. Kamps has been affiliated in an auditing organization with his brother, G. T. Kamps.

Mr. Kamps is survived by his widow, four children, Mary Jane, Helen, Vivian and Dean; his mother, Mrs. Catherine Kamps, two brothers, Henry of St. Paul and Geb T. of Appleton; two sisters, Mrs. James Bradley of Antigo and Mrs. George Mader of Appleton.

MILLIONAIRE IS KILLED BY FRIEND

Son of Chain Store Owner Is Victim of Accident on Florida Estate

Orlando, Fla.—(AP)—Van C. McCrory, son and sole heir to the millions of John C. McCrory, chain store operator, was accidentally killed by one of his closest friends during a deer hunt Tuesday.

Raymer F. Maguire, Orlando attorney, and a relative by marriage, shot the 32 year old vice president of the McCrory chain while the two men were traveling horseback through the 10,000 acre McCrory estate in Orange-co.

Investigating officers reported that the shooting was clearly accidental, and made a report which led to the announcement that no inquest will be held. McCrory was shot once in the back, and died of hemorrhage of the lungs before medical aid could be obtained. The body was held here Wednesday pending word from the elder McCrory.

The younger McCrory was the only son of the owner of 260 acres in the United States. He was first vice president of the McCrory corporation which his father headed. Maguire was formerly states attorney for the Seventeenth Judicial district of Florida, a former president of the Orlando Chamber of Commerce and president of the University of Florida Alumni association. His wife was a first cousin of Van McCrory.

HOUDINI SENDS MESSAGE TO WIFE FROM SPIRIT WORLD

Noted Magazine Editor Says He Believes Test Was Genuine

New York—John W. Stafford, associate editor of the Scientific American, Tuesday night declared he was convinced Harry Houdini, dead magician, talked through a medium with Mrs. Beatrice Houdini, his widow, Tuesday afternoon.

Stafford was a witness at the séance at which Arthur Ford, minister of the First Spiritual church and a medium, transmitted an alleged message from the "spirit world" to Mrs. Houdini, in the code which Houdini left with his wife before he died.

Stafford said regarding the séance: "In this case, accepting the good faith of all parties concerned, which I do, there can be no doubt that communication has been established between a living person and one dead."

Ford visited Mrs. Houdini at her home. She is confined to bed on account of an injury to her spine. Stafford and Mrs. Houdini were there with several other observers. Ford went into a trance and announced he was in contact with a "control" in the spirit world.

According to Ford the "control" said:

"The same man who came Saturday night is coming again. He says 'Hello, Bea, my sweetheart.' 'Bea,' according to Mrs. Houdini was her husband's pet name for her. 'He says he wants to repeat the code you used in your mind reading act with him,' Ford said the 'control' informed him, and then continued:

"SING 'RING SONG'"

"First of all he says 'Rosabelle. Do you know what that means?' Mrs. Houdini said she knew what that meant.

"The 'control' then said 'Answer tell pray answer look tell answer answer tell.'"

"The 'control' then asked, 'Is that right?'"

Mrs. Houdini whispered, "It is."

"The 'control' declared: 'Now take off your wedding ring and tell them what Rosabelle means.'"

Mrs. Houdini slipped her wedding ring from her finger and sang the following song, which was engraved inside the ring:

"Rosabelle, sweet Rosabelle, I love you more than I can tell. Over to you cast a spell. I love you, my sweet Rosabelle."

After the song was completed the

One Killed By Gangmen In Chicago

Chicago—(AP)—At Pasquallino Lofredo's house late Tuesday three smiling men raised glasses to drink the health of their host; then they shot him dead.

Eleven bullets from automatic pistols drilled into the head, neck and shoulders of Lofredo. When he fell, the fingers of his right hand still clutched the stem of his wine glass, shattered by the shots.

Whether Lofredo's assassination was a sequel to the murder of Tony Lombardo last fall, to blackhand operations of recent months, or to some unexplained gang hatred, police were not prepared to say.

They were looking, however, for Joe Aiello, eldest of seven brothers, whose participation in gang violence has come under police scrutiny several times in the past. John Stege, deputy police commissioner, said he had a witness who identified Aiello as one of the three men in the room when Lofredo was slain.

ANOTHER SHOOTING

Detectives were still at the Lofredo flat, questioning Lofredo's grief-stricken widow, when another gang shooting wounded Rocco Maggio severely.

Maggio, once convicted of murder, was shot in the head by men who fired shotguns from their automobile as it sped by Maggio's home.

The guns that removed Tony Lombardo from gang power four months ago in a downtown street shooting, echoed in the Lofredo flat Tuesday; for it was Lofredo's brother, Joe who walked at Lombardo's side when the leader among Italians fell. Police believed the two assassinations were connected, but in what manner they could not say. There was even one report that Joe Lofredo was in the room when his brother was shot, and that he was wounded. His wife refuted this, saying he had been out of town several days.

"control" continued speaking through Ford.

"I thank you, darling, that was the first song I ever heard you sing. You sang it in our first show. Remember?"

Mrs. Houdini said she remembered.

The "control" then explained that the conversation as reported was the secret code message Houdini had arranged between them. Mrs. Houdini also said the "control" repeated the right code message.

BADGER BAR GROUP CELEBRATES ITS 51ST ANNIVERSARY

Organization Includes 1,500
of State's 2,000 Attorneys

Madison (AP)—Wednesday marks the fifty-first anniversary of the founding of the Wisconsin Bar association.

A desire which a small group of lawyers meeting in Madison more than a half century ago had for the ethical advancement of their profession later bore fruit with the organization of the State Bar association.

From the nebulous idea of these lawyers, the organization which stood at first on spindly legs has grown to a strong maturity. Today more than 1,500 of the approximately 2,000 lawyers of the state have bound themselves to practice the ethics set up by their fellows.

When a vacancy in the judgeship of the western district of Wisconsin occurred in 1877, members of the bar gathered in the U. S. courtroom in Madison Sept. 21 to express opinions on the appointment of a man to fill the position. While chatting informally, A. A. Jackson, Janesville, called attention of his fellows to the need for a state bar group.

Concurring, the lawyers appointed a committee to draw preliminary plans. This committee reported at a subsequent session, a call was issued to the lawyers of the state, and the date of the meeting was set for Jan. 9, 1878.

MANY ATTEND

With a goodly number of the state lawyers gathered, Chief Justice J. Ryan, chairman of the organizing committee, opened the meeting which was held in the supreme court chambers with an address in which he outlined the need and purposes for the formation of a lawyers' group. He said in part:

"The use of such an association are obvious. Without it, the bar cannot properly assert itself, or exercise its due influence in matters of interest to it. Doubtless, in matters bearing on the interests of the profession, individual members of the bar exert some influence, but such influence is necessarily fragmentary, and sometimes discordant. The bar as a body can only have the influence which properly belongs to it on professional subjects through an organization by which it can speak with one voice."

TELEVISION SERVICE
"The vast body of our law, called the common law, is the work of our profession. . . . And the profession which is educated in common law and has maintained its service, ought to have an influential voice in all legislation which modifies or repeals its rules. . . . The legislative power would pass laws and the executive draw the sword to enforce them in vain, if there were no courts to administer them."

"And a court without a bar would be little better than an untrustworthy illusion; a disturbing phantom of justice."

"Glory of the bar and the easy access which it gives to high place have drawn towards it men unfitted for it by nature and education. . . . Power of courts to weed the profession of its untrustworthy members is limited and inadequate. All efficient steps to purge the bar must come from the bar itself. And this could scarcely be done by individual effort. The aggregate bar must speak and act. The great body of the profession should enforce its ethics; censure what is worthy of censure, and move to disbar all who forfeit the honor to belong to it."

OUTLINE PURPOSES
With this outline of the purposes of the proposed body, the assembled barriesters elected Chief Justice Ryan president, but he declined. Moses M. Strong, Mineral Point, was then elected. There were thirteen vice-presidents, one each for the judicial districts of the state. Edwin E. Bryant, Madison, was elected secretary; J. H. Carpenter, Madison, was put in the office of treasurer. A constitution was subsequently drawn up and lawyers were elected to join.

The work is carried on by committees. Some of the more important of these are: a grievance committee which receives and investigates charges of misconduct; a committee on Amendment of the Law which considers and reports on proposed changes in the law and makes recommendations for the action of the body either in support of, or in opposition to, a committee on qualifications for the bar.

LIFER ALLOWED TO VISIT AT BEDSIDE OF HIS DYING WIFE

Madison (AP)—Stern discipline that regulates the lives of the inmates of the Wisconsin State prison was broken to permit a Negro "lifer" to visit the bedside of his wife, in Madison.

Responding to the plea of John Billingslea, serving a life sentence for the murder of a negroess here in 1925, state prison authorities permitted the prisoner to come to Madison under guard.

From the Dane-co jail where he was confined while here, Billingslea was twice taken to see his wife, and returned to prison following her death Monday night.

POSTMASTER MIGHT NOT BE NAMED HERE FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Local Republicans Apparently Are Disinclined to Make Recommendation

Appointment of a postmaster in Appleton may not be made for another year, unless Republican officials in this city recommend a candidate for the position before next fall. And judging from inactivity of local Republicans in this matter, no recommendation will be forthcoming.

Three candidates, certified by the civil service commission, are eligible for the postmastership here. They are Mayor A. C. Rule, Herman J. Franck, assistant postmaster, and Emory Greunke, local contractor. If an appointment is to be made this year, it must be one of these three candidates.

In the meantime, Fred Felix Wetzel, appointed acting postmaster by the president early in 1927, will continue in that capacity, and if no appointment is forthcoming, he will hold his position at least until next fall.

To secure the postmastership, a candidate must pass a civil service examination and be certified by the civil service commission. Local leaders of the political party in power then must recommend a candidate certified by the commission to the national committeeman of the state. The latter then turns in his recommendation to the president.

The matter evidently has come to a standstill in Appleton. Following the civil service examination last fall, the above mentioned candidates were certified, and local Republicans told by the George A. Vits, Manitowoc, national committeeman of Wisconsin, to recommend one of the three.

The certification was made the latter part of September. No action has been taken by Appleton Republicans since that time, however, and there apparently is no inclination on their part to do so. If a recommendation was to be made, it would have been announced before this time, it is pointed out by local politicians.

A candidate certified for the position remains eligible for one year in case no recommendation is made. At the end of this time, another civil service examination, followed by the certification, must be held. The appointment again can be blocked at this point, but it seldom happens that the matter drags on for such a long time.

G. Glasier, Madison, secretary-treasurer; Frank B. Bentley, judicial; Francis E. McGovern, amendment of laws; Arthur A. McLeod, assistant-secretary.

"Caught in the Fog"

MAY McAVOY AND CONRAD NAGEL IN A SCENE FROM "CAUGHT IN THE FOG" AT BRIN'S APPLETON THEATRE THURSDAY AND FRIDAY.

METERS PROTECTED FROM COLD BY SNOW

Despite the recent cold snap, the city water department has experienced scarcely any difficulty with frozen meters or service connections, it is reported by Arthur Dimick, secretary at the department's office. Only about a half dozen meters have been frozen and similar difficulty has been encountered with only one or two pipes.

The snowfall preceding the cold snap was a god-send for the water department, Mr. Dimick indicated. Had it not been for the covering of snow, extreme difficulty no doubt would have been met from frozen meters, but the snow kept the cold from penetrating far into the ground, he said.

PLAN FOR COUNTY HOME TALENT PLAY CONTEST

Plans for the Outagamie-co home talent play contest which will be held in Jan. 16, are being made by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools. While the contest will take place in Appleton the place for holding it has not yet been decided. Four county groups will take part in the affair and the winner will represent the county in a district contest which will be held at Roosevelt junior high school here on Saturday, Jan. 19. Winnebago and Waupaca-co winners will take part in the district contest also. Winner of the district contest will go to Madison in February to take part in the state contest.

Mrs. Emma Scherke, 320 E. Wisconsin-ave, has returned from Dayton, O., where she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. George Roesch, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keighly and Mr. and Mrs. Buchheizer, former residents of Appleton.

Simplicity of cooling system is a feature of the new Ford

A COMPLETE water plant is a part of every automobile as it is a part of every modern city.

The purpose of this water plant is to keep the engine cooled to a temperature that will make it efficient in operation. If it were not for this, the cylinder walls would overheat and the pistons would refuse to operate.

The cooling system of the new Ford is particularly interesting because it is so simple and reliable.

When the radiator is full of water, the engine of the new Ford will not overheat under the hardest driving. Yet the action of the water is so regulated that it will not impair engine operation by running too cold in winter.

The cooling surface of the Ford radiator is large and there are four rows of tubes, set in staggered position so that each receives the full benefit of the incoming air.

The fan is of the airplane-propeller type and draws air through the radiator at the rapid rate of 850 cubic feet per minute at 1000 revolutions per minute of the motor.

The hot water around the cylinder head is drawn to the radiator to be cooled by a centrifugal water pump of new design.

The entire cooling system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little attention.

The radiator should be kept full of water, of course, and drained once each month so that sediment will not collect and retard the free passage of water. In cold weather a reliable anti-freeze solution should be added.

As owner and manager of this important water plant, you should also see that the water pump and fan shaft are properly lubricated and the packing around the pump shaft kept in adjustment.

The hose connections may also need replacement after long, continuous service. For those little adjustments, it pays to call on the Ford dealer.

He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to do a competent job at a fair price.

BANK ASSOCIATION WARNS OF CHECKS

Reports Four Instances Where State Merchants Were Victimized

Four instances where Wisconsin merchants have been victimized by check forgers have been reported to the state bankers association in the last week and other merchants warned to be on the lookout. One case is that where checks on the Waldo State bank are being cashed by a man who signs his name as Arnold Grantmann, Waldo, reported recently that his car containing several blank checks was stolen. Some of Grantmann's checks also have been signed by a man named Nelson.

A William C. Pruyn formerly in the employ of the Sorto Sales company is said to be cashing bad checks using the company's sales literature as a means of identification. A third case was reported from Sheboygan where a Henry R. Lee, married, and with a family, cashed a bad check on a Montgomery, Ala., bank after first establishing credit by purchasing furniture and securing a job. The fourth case also is reported from Sheboygan where a woman calling herself Myrtle Fischer cashed checks signed by a Mrs. J. H. Krause whom she said lives on a rural route near Sheboygan. The woman wears a black felt hat and blue chinchilla coat. She is said to be 20 to 25 years of age.

ASSEMBLY IN VOTE FIGHT ON SPEAKER

administered the oath of office to 18 senators, who were elected in the general election in November. In the assembly, Marvin B. Rosenberry, acting chief justice of the supreme court, presided in the entire body, the group standing with right hands raised and repeating the oath in unison and adding "I do." Chief Clerk Shaffer commented on the fact that the entire body was present for the first time in his knowledge. After members signed the roll, Justice Rosenberry affixed his name as witness.

PICK SERGEANT-AT-ARMS—George W. Rickman, Racine, who served as sergeant-at-arms of the senate during the 1927 session, was named to the post after his name was the only one presented to that body.

State Senators E. J. Roethe of Fennimore, Merritt F. White of Winneconne, and H. B. Daggett of Milwaukee, were named the committee on committees.

Facing new problems on embarking under a new administration the fifty-ninth session of the legislature opened at noon Wednesday. Promptly at the stroke of noon, C. E. Shaffer, veteran chief clerk brought the assembly to order with a rap of the gavel and said: "The assembly now will be in order."

The members rose for the opening prayer by the Rev. H. H. Lumpkin, pastor of the Grace Episcopal church at Madison.

The state senate convened three and one-half minutes later due to the tardiness of President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin. As soon as Dr. Frank arrived Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber, Stoughton, assumed his place on the rostrum and brought the senate with the members standing.

"Senators, cordial greetings. The hour of twelve having arrived it becomes my duty to call this session to order," Dr. Frank then offered the prayer in the senate.

With these open formalities both houses proceeded to organize following a roll call. There were many people in the galleries and others in the lobbies as the legislature went into session.

HOUSE VOTES ON SPEAKER

After 50 minutes spent with opening formalities, the assembly turned to its most important business of the day, that of selection of a speaker to preside over its deliberations. Those placed in nomination were C. B. Perry of Waubesa, the Conservative choice; Alvin C. Reis of Madison, selection of Progressives; Michael J. Mersch of Stevens Point, Democrat, and Albert

CANCER DEATHS IN WISCONSIN IN '27 LESS, BOARD FINDS

Death Rate for Each 100,000 Population Declined from 1926 to 107.3

Madison — (P)— Cancer deaths in 1927 showed a decline in Wisconsin for the first time in many years, according to figures in Wisconsin for the first time in many years, according to figures just compiled by the state board of health. Up until that year, the disease showed an annual increase without interruption.

In 1927, the death rate for each 100,000 population was 107.3, while in the year before, the figure was 109. There were 3,053 deaths from the disease in 1927, while 3,069 from the year before, the board reports.

The cancer death rate has increased from 65.9 in 1908 to 109 in 1926. The actual increase has been from 1,513 deaths in 1908 to 3,053 in 1926. The percentage of cancer deaths to all deaths increased from 5.6 in 1908 to 10.3 in 1927.

Slightly more than half the cancer mortality during 1927 was in females. The tabulation showing that 589 or 52 per cent of the total cancer deaths were in the female sex, while 1,464 or 48 per cent were in males.

"The mere fact that the cancer death rate does not show the usual steady increase is worthy of special comment," the report said. "In the control of no disease is more imperative health examination more imperative than in respect to cancer. This is true because cancer at first is not marked by pain, such as characteristics of most other serious diseases. It usually progresses with the victim often unaware of his danger until the safe operable stage has come and passed.

"Regular health examinations are therefore suggested as the only reliable hope of early discovery of cancer, and should be frequently done by a capable physician. When the nature of the disease is positively diagnosed in the early stages, death can usually be avoided by proper surgical attention, since the chances of recovery are greatest at this time. Our mortality from cancer could be materially reduced if all citizens young and old, would have a thorough physical examination each year."

LONDON OPTIMISTIC ABOUT KING GEORGE

London — (P)—The British public Tuesday accepted the complete recovery of King George as a foregone conclusion. The tense solicitude which formerly characterized the crowds around the gates of Buckingham palace has disappeared. Monday night's bulletin said:

"The king had a quiet day. There is no change to report in his majesty's condition. The next bulletin will be issued tomorrow evening."

It was explained for the benefit of the public that the words "no change" did not imply that the king's condition was unsatisfactory but meant that he was holding his own. It was expected Tuesday that in the long climb to convalescence—a stage which has not yet been reached—there might be several days when no definite improvement would be recorded. As long as there is no setback and the king maintains his strength, it was felt that doctors would not be dissatisfied.

A GREAT FLIGHT

The army monoplane Question Mark by staying in the air 150 hours and 40 minutes has set a mark for the aviation corps of other nations to shoot at. Although the purpose of the flight was not primarily to see how long the big plane could stay in the air, the record made is most gratifying to army officers and civilians alike, and ought to give impetus to the development of aviation in this country.

The main purpose of the flight was to demonstrate the feasibility of refueling a plane while in mid-air. The army flyers and the crews of the refueling planes proved that this could be done and without much difficulty. The Question Mark was refueled 35 times during its six day and a half flight and never once was there any great risk involved.

QUEER MOTORISTS

Engineers of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads have measured us and catalogued us from observations made on the public highways. From these measurements we may see what peculiar animals we are when we take hold of a steering wheel and go out on the high roads for a spin.

For instance, no matter how wide the road may be, we keep as far away from the right edge as possible. We'd rather skin dangerously close to an approaching motorist on our left, these engineers find, than move over to the right to avoid a crash.

But if there's a white line down the middle of the highway, we almost invariably respect it and stay over on our own side. And if there's a smooth white shoulder to the right, we move even farther over to the edge.

Taking a turn, we move over to the inside and cut the turn short. But we give ourselves little leeway when we have to take a turn to the right.

Going down hill on light grades we speed along on high, but keep to the center of the road. When the grades are so steep as to require the use of low gear, on the other hand, we hug the edge of the road more closely.

As a result of these observations, the engineers have found, we motorists need a 24-foot road for 20-foot driving. Because of this clearance, the narrowest possible road for safe driving should be 20 feet, they say.

Paradoxically, however, the engineers would widen the road at turns where they have noticed traffic to crowd up into a narrower margin toward the inside!

SAVING THE BABIES

The United States is continuing in the good work of cutting down its infant mortality rate, according to Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor. The rate last year—65 infant deaths per 1000 live births—was the lowest in the country's history.

Let us relax our efforts, however, Miss Abbott points out that no state in the Union has yet succeeded in getting the rate as low as New Zealand, where it is only 39 per 1000. The best record is held by Oregon, with a rate of 48. Idaho and Washington are tied for second with 50, and Nebraska, Minnesota, Utah, Iowa, Kansas, New York, Wisconsin, Indiana and Connecticut follow in the order named.

The lowering of the rate, Miss Abbott reports, is "unquestionably associated with the general improvement in public health, the establishment of child health conferences, the development of prenatal clinics, the distribution of literature and public education."

ABOUT USING YOUR TIME

In a current magazine there is one article by a popular author saying you cannot afford to waste your spare time. There is another in which a contributor wins a prize for saying he doesn't like leisure. There is another by a woman who tells all about how she loves to work, and stayed up nights to do it and was tired all the time for six years. She cut down a bit, but kept the part she liked best and goes on working.

Another magazine has an article on earning less money and getting more out of life. This writer approves of doing enough work to cover the major needs, but with those met, he chooses, whenever possible, leisure rather than money. He thinks he gets more life out of leisure than out of rushing about and owning things.

The difference between the two points of view is a fundamental one. It is the difference between East and West, between the strenuous life and the meditative one. The gulf between activity for its own sake as one ideal and contemplation of the universe interrupted only at intervals long enough to pass a begging bowl for a bit of rice as another, is too great to be closed in any artificial manner. The difference in point of view is inherent in the two sets of personalities.

But we should say that the man who has chosen to work just hard enough to keep his family comfortable, while saving enough time to enjoy the family life for which he is working, who is too busy to worry about the Joneses but not too busy for good books and open fires and walks in the woods and just sitting on a rock and thinking about things, is building himself a pretty good bridge over that gulf.

We find no fault with the man who is sticking to strenuous ideals of labor and character. He is pegging away on the lower levels of Buddha's eightfold path—he is trying to "want what's right, know what's right, say what's right and do what's right." But the other man has found the upper reaches. We suspect he is going to know the taste, before he dies of "right thought, right loneliness, right purity, right rapture."

CORN SUGAR

Two dozen well-dressed strangers drifted into Cleveland from various directions and registered at a leading hotel under various names, taking the best suites in the place. They came together in one room for an expensive and elegant breakfast. Somebody grew suspicious. The police drew a cordon around the hotel and carried those 24 guests off to the station house for interrogation. No, they didn't know each other and had no connection. They seemed to be mostly from New York and Chicago. It was a mere coincidence that nearly all of them had Italian names and carried guns in their suitcases.

The authorities, forced to release them on habeas corpus proceedings, entered charges of "suspicion" and placed their bond as $10,000 apiece. Immediately Cleveland friends swarmed in and put up $200,000 worth of houses, stores and other real estate to bail the strangers out. What was it all about? Apparently about corn sugar. That commodity, essential for manufacturing liquor, is said to have been cornered recently by one of the bootleg kings. There is so much profit in it that caravans of bootleggers and gunmen can travel like princes, and jails cannot hold them. It's just one little angle of the complex liquor situation in this country.

PROFITABLE ARSENET-MINDEDNESS
A western physician, driving along a lonely road, picked up a "hitch-hiker" according to a news story. For ten miles he and his companion, a likeable young fellow of about twenty-five, discussed everything of mutual interest. Then the doctor reached for his watch. It was gone! Whipping out his gun, he is alleged to have covered the youth and barked, "Hand over that watch!" The young man did so quickly, with a surprised look—then ran down the road! The doctor's wife asked him that night, "Didn't you miss your watch today? You left it this mornin' on the dresser."

"I've swallowed my collar button," gasped the husband.
"Well," responded his wife, "you know where it is, anyway."

"Just medium, I think," she said. "My husband takes a 16 collar."

Katy: "Insect powder! Well, good gracious, who'd think that bugs knew enough to powder their little noses!"

TOO MUCH IODIN IS NOT SO GOOD

Somehow yuletide was not so merry, after all. Had a letter that saddened me, from a doctor and teacher whom I greatly revere. I'll quote just a little of it, enough to show why I couldn't be as happy this Christmas as usual.

"You admit that the view of the strong possibility of contracting respiratory disease from being chilled is shared by thousands of physicians. Yet you do not hesitate to call me 'stale' because I too hold this view. How would you like it when, because of an inflexible rule of the so-called age limit, somebody suddenly sees fit to publish in newspapers that you are becoming stale and need iodine treatment, simply because you hold a widely accepted view different from a gentleman who writes for the public press? The Golden Rule is after all a good guide in dealing with our fellow-men."

I am not going to try to explain except to repeat that I have always regarded the doctor in question as the very foremost authority in his field and I have never ceased to admire him and his work, even though I do think he is quite wrong about the effect of chilling, and I think so in spite of the thousands of physicians who share that view. I admit I erred when I printed the suggestion that the doctor was getting "stale" and needed an iodine ration. That is what grieves me now. I want to try to make amends, though I cannot name the doctor in this article.

I have intimated here more than once that many hospitals are very badly managed indeed. It seems to me that a hospital that would retire a man of the caliber of my correspondent merely because he has reached an arbitrary age is badly mismanaged. Such a rule seems as unwise as the rule that army officers shall be retired at age 64. At 64 the average man may be physically declining, but not mentally, and an army officer's duties, like those of a medical teacher and specialist, do not require the physical efficiency of youth. Shall we throw away all the knowledge and experience the physician or officer may have gained in his years of service, just because some shortsighted psychologicist demands such sacrifices? Physiology teaches no such thing. We know that intellectual capacity, wisdom, judgment, fact, and reason are at their highest development long years after the down grade. Did the world drop all the elderly statesmen when might problems arose during the Great War?

I am frankly prejudiced in favor of the younger physicians because, as a rule, they have the better training. Yet a doctor's youth alone is no index of his ability; many a young physician becomes actually an old fogey in a few short years, because he tries to make his way in practice without keeping up his studies. By the same token, many a doctor of long years of practice is still youthful in spirit and full abreast of his profession because he has never ceased to study. My correspondent belongs in the latter class. When I prescribed an iodine ration for him I—oh, chuckle, I was trying to be funny and as usual succeeded only in being ungentlemanly. I meant to banter and I actually wounded. Some readers may not believe it but I have never written a word here that has brought greater regret than this.

Adventures In The Library

By Arnold Mulder

INTRODUCING A NEW DUTCH NOVELIST

Not since the death of Louis Couperus a few years ago has a novelist arisen in The Netherlands who has won a world audience. There may have been some who deserved it but for the most part they have remained untranslated. Within the last few weeks a new writer—that is, new to English speaking people, not new to those who speak Dutch—has arisen who has achieved translation into English.

Jo Van Ammers Kuller is the writer and her book which is now available to American and English readers is "The Rebel Generation." Jo Van Ammers Kuller is not another Louis Couperus. There is no comparison between the two. Couperus was a Dutch sophisticate; Van Ammers Kuller is a propagandist. Couperus loved words and delicate shadings. Van Ammers Kuller is interested in social trends. Couperus was almost pure artist, who stood aside from the streams of life and watched; Van Ammers Kuller is passionately interested in the struggle and hopes to get things done.

There is room for both kinds of novelists. Of her kind Van Ammers Kuller is one who is worthy of respect not only when compared with the writers of her own country but with writers of that type anywhere. It is a fine thing that she has been translated into English and has thus been given an opportunity to win a wide audience. The book should be widely read.

"The Rebel Generation" is a story of the emancipation of woman.

Similar books have been written by English and American writers. It has been a favorite subject but Van Ammers Kuller places her story against a background that makes it fresh and new.

The first section of the book gives an unforgettable picture of a typical Dutch family in the middle of the last century when women were looked upon merely as a biological necessity. The man was the lord and master and women were only a little more than chattels. Against this whole idea one woman rebels and she carries in her train a number of more timid women. This section of the book is in every way admirable. In this part Van Ammers Kuller shows herself a novelist of non-sordid distinction, keeping the propagandist almost wholly in subjection.

Then she skips some thirty years and tells the story of the struggle for emancipation in the next generation—in the seventies and eighties, the characters being the children of the characters in the earlier section. Whereas in the earlier day women did not dare say their souls were their own, in the newer day they demand rights for themselves and ask for equality with men.

The third section of the book deals with the present generation, the time being 1923. The grandchildren of the original characters are introduced and women are presented as completely emancipated. They serve in parliament, they are in the professions, they come and go as they please without asking leave of the men. But they are no more satisfied than were their grandmothers. They wonder if it has been worth while and at the very last one of them learns that all she wants after all is the love of a man, something that her grandmother had before she began the emancipation struggle.

The author thus indulges in a wise smile at the human puppets she has placed on her pages, seeming to say that that is the way of progress. There is an advance but when the utopia of one generation is reached by the next it is found to be no utopia at all. The necessity for struggle is eternal.

This new Dutch novelist is worth reading and worth watching. "The Rebel Generation" is not a perfect novel. In spots it is too pat and too neatly contrived to carry complete conviction, and its ending is marred by sentimentalism. But in spite of all that it is very much worth while. It should win a large American audience and should have the way for other Van Ammers Kuller books here.

Appletonian to Be Honored
in Book

Eleven Appleton men are listed in the 1928-29 Who's Who, one more than appeared in the 1927-28 book. The new man to attain the distinction is Dr. James Lockhart Mursell, professor of education at Lawrence college and author of "Principles of Musical Education."

FORCED TO WEAR PLACARD, PUPIL SUES FOR $20,000

Roosburg —(P)—Because she claimed, she had to wear a placard around her neck which read "I am not a good citizen," during school hours, Evelyn Jackson, 12, a pupil at the Kelly school here, is bringing action for damages of $20,000 against her teacher, Kenneth Scoon of this city.

Miss Jackson who is bringing the suit for libel and assault, through her father, John Jackson, claims that she was forced to wear the placard during school hours for a misdeed and that her feelings were hurt to the extent of $20,000.

An adverse examination has been set for Saturday.

In discussing the action being brought against the teacher, Mr. Jackson said his daughter's failure to take down the school's flag from the pole in the yard resulted in her being forced to wear the placard. Snow and ice made it very difficult to haul the flag down, Mr. Jackson said. He added that since the flag had not been taken down every night, his daughter was being discriminated against by the teacher.

INCREASE IN NIGHT SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

Sixty People Enrolled to Learn English Language

The second period of night classes at the Appleton vocational school got underway 7:30 Monday evening, and although the enrollment in classes showed a big increase over the first period, there is still room for people in nearly all courses, according to Herb Hollig, director. Academic classes meet from 7:30 to 9 in the evening and shop courses meet from 7:30 to 9:30.

Sixty people have enrolled in English classes which are especially designed for those who have difficulty with the language. Eight classes for beginners and advanced students are held weekly, and instructors are Mrs. Morgan, Guy Barlow, Mrs. Ray Challoner, Mrs. Joseph Mallory, Mrs. T. J. Long and Mrs. Maurice Peerenboom. Several members of the beginners class cannot understand English, and each sentence must be interpreted, according to Mrs. Peerenboom, head of the department.

CITY SENDS ZONING MAP TO RAILROAD

A zoning map and a copy of the city's zoning law has been sent to the Chicago and North Western Railway Co. at Green Bay, in response to a request from the company for such information, according to Mayor A. C. Eide. The railway company is securing all the data it can on zoning in cities in this territory to facilitate the task of working out further industrial developments in cities served by the road, it was explained by J. S. Rice, railway superintendent. Collection of the data also enables the railroad to submit information to industrial enterprises, it was pointed out.

Sargon A "Tower Of Strength" To Cudahy Employee

Dreadfully Weakened and Run-down Condition.

"Some time ago I had a bad attack of influenza, and it left me in a very weak and generally run-down condition. My strength was sapped and my energy at low ebb. I didn't seem to have enough strength left to do even the lightest kind of work."

"My liver was out of order and I was very bilious and nervous. My appetite left me, and on account of my generally weakened condition, I didn't digest what little food I ate, and nothing seemed to agree with me. I was always very nervous and my sleep broken."

"Indigestion caused gases that at times made my heart attack skippy, and there wasn't any time that I wasn't in some kind of pain."

"Everybody told me I needed some kind of strengthening tonic, and I tried most everything I thought would benefit me, but nothing I took gave me permanent relief."

"My son had wonderful results from Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills, and he kept after me to try them. Then, to please him I started taking them, and I knew after the first few doses that I had found the medicine I needed. It acted different from any other medicine I had tried, and before I had finished the first bottle, I commenced to feel better."

"Now, I sleep fine, have a good appetite and my nerves are quiet and steady. I wouldn't have believed that Sargon could have made such a change in such a short time unless I had taken it myself."

"I gained five pounds in two weeks, and everybody tells me how well I look. I feel so strong now that I can hardly realize how weak and worn out I was a short time ago. Sargon has proven a tower of strength to me."

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills are more than a laxative. My liver is now in good order, my biliousness is gone and I am regular as clock work. And the nervous slunken or irritable in the least. I will never be without them again."

The above remarkable statement was made by Peter Galger, of 535 Homer Ave., Cudahy, Wis. Mr. Galger is employed in the packing department of the Cudahy Packing Co. and is well known and respected in the neighborhood in which he lives.

CHICAGO MILK WAR DOESN'T REACH TO APPLETON FARMERS

Very Little Milk Shipped
Out of Here to Chicago
Market

Unless the situation becomes more acute, the milk price war between the Chicago milk dealers and 7,000 milk producers of Illinois, southern Wisconsin and Indiana, which came to a head on Saturday, will have no effect upon the milk situation in the vicinity of Appleton, according to James Wood of Potts-Wood and Co. At the present time it is having no influence whatsoever, as very little milk has been shipped from Appleton.

Mr. Wood advanced the opinion that the extra supply of milk is being obtained from the same source which Chicago milk dealers use during the "short" period in September and October, when there is less milk available than during the winter months, and that unless the war continues over a prolonged period, period these sources will be sufficient to carry them through.

The milk war was precipitated by an attempt of the milk producers to obtain recognition in the price-fixing program of the Chicago milk dealers and to raise the price paid producers from $2.50 per hundred pounds to $2.35, and by the fact refusal of the dealers to advance the price of milk or to recognize the producers as a bargaining agency.

On Saturday, as a result of the failure of the dealers and producers to agree, no milk was delivered at the plant of the Bowman Dairy company, Janesville, where the daily deliveries run from 100,000 to 150,000 pounds of milk. Only 10 of the 175 farmers who supply milk to Brooklyn plant of the same company delivered their milk, and this resistance has spread to many other Sauk county plants.

The milk price war involves Chicago milk consumers, and the members of the Chicago Pure Milk Producers' association, 3,000 of whom are located in southern Wisconsin. Chicago receives from 750,000 to 1,000,000 pounds of milk from Wisconsin daily.

SALVATION ARMY DEBATES ON CHIEF

High Council Holds Secret
Meeting Today to Determine
Who'll Rule

London—(P)—The question whether General Bramwell Booth would continue as commander-in-chief of the Salvation army was before the high council of the organization Tuesday for decision. The general was considered by his doctors too ill to attend the meeting at Sunbury-on-Thames with safety.

Extraordinary measures were taken to insure absolute secrecy regarding the meeting. Admission to Sunbury court was denied to all except those authorized and provided with special passes and police guarded the entrance to see that this secrecy was maintained.

It was officially stated that General Booth would send a message to the council, but there was no hint as to its import.

The general's wife and daughter Catherine, were his champions for continuing him in office. A statement by his physicians, Dr. John Weir, physician to the prince of Wales, and Dr. Ernest Wardlaw Milne, his regular physician, said that he was mentally fit to continue as head of the army, although he needed six months rest and care to recover from his recent severe illness.

The reform party which desires a new leader or the recasting of the whole system of the army's control was led by the general's sister, Evangeline Booth, who is head of the American Branch. It was believed in some circles that if the present control was perpetuated by the decision of the council the

IMPROPER ADDRESSES HOLD UP AIR MAIL

A large number of air mail letters, which have been received at the local office since the inauguration of the new Fox river valley air mail line, are being held by F. F. Wettengel, acting postmaster, because the address is not sufficient to assure their delivery. In many instances the letters were sent to some person in Appleton and addressed "c/o Postmaster." In many cases, Mr. Wettengel said, these people are unknown to him and the letters cannot be delivered. Unless the persons call for the letters or unless their delivery is arranged for in some other way this mail is to be sent to the dead letter office. Mr. Wettengel said. The letters being held do not carry return addresses.

"Come here, Mary."
"Just a minute, Mother."
"Mary, when I say come, come. Don't put me off that way."
"All right, I'm coming." Mary came into the living room dropping crumbs from her piece of bread and butter and jelly.

"Don't bring that in here. You'll ruin the rug. Those greasy crumbs make spots."
"Mayn't I finish my bread? I'm awfully hungry."
"Yes—go back to the kitchen and finish it, but hurry. I want you to do an errand."

"Come here, Mary?"
"Yes, Mother—just a minute."
"Mary! Come here. I won't wait another instant. I'm getting tired of your just-coming-me."
"I just had two more words in spelling to finish."

"I don't care. You must learn to come the minute I call you."
Mary handed in her paper next day with the two missing words. She had forgotten all about them. She had to stay in and write each word 25 times after school.

"Mary."
"Yes, Mother."
"Come here!"
"Yes, Mother."

No Mary, however, was immediately forthcoming.

"Mary, what on earth are you doing? Come here this instant."

Buddy had smeared dark streaks of red, blue, and yellow water-color all over the wall-paper until it looked like a July sunset.

"Mary! Mary! Come here! See what you've done. You careless girl! You left your paints out and Buddy has ruined everything in your room."

"I was putting them away when you called me," said poor Mary, not waiting a minute but bursting frantically into the room. "I just knew he'd get into my things! I was coloring my map. I tried to shut the paint box and put it up where he couldn't reach it."

Her mother didn't answer. It was beginning to dawn upon her that she was a bit unreasonable about this instantaneous business.

Children should be taught to come quickly, it is true, but how often, if you were called, could you drop what you are doing without delay? Not often.

It does not do to be too arbitrary.

THAT pleasure little Clowny had. Said he. "Well, I am sure glad that all the rest are sound asleep, and we are here alone. There's no one else to dance with you, so all the dancing I can do." And thus they went on dancing to the organ's pretty tone.

It wasn't very long until the wee dwarf said, "I've had my fill of playing on this organ. Gee, my arms are all tired out. I cannot turn the crank much more. I think I'll go to sleep and snore." That he was mighty sleepy there was very little doubt.

"All right," said Clowny. "Go ahead and rest your little sleepy head. We thank you very much for all the lovely tunes you've played. When you turn in, please wake the bunch. They'll get up, I have a hunch, 'cause they will want to play some more." So off the wee dwarf slipped.

When Clowny and the others came, another dwarf said, "There's a game that all of you will quite enjoy. Come on, and follow me." "You bet," cried Clowny. "I'm no dunce, and I'll try and real fun once. I hope it is some thrilling sport that we are going to see."

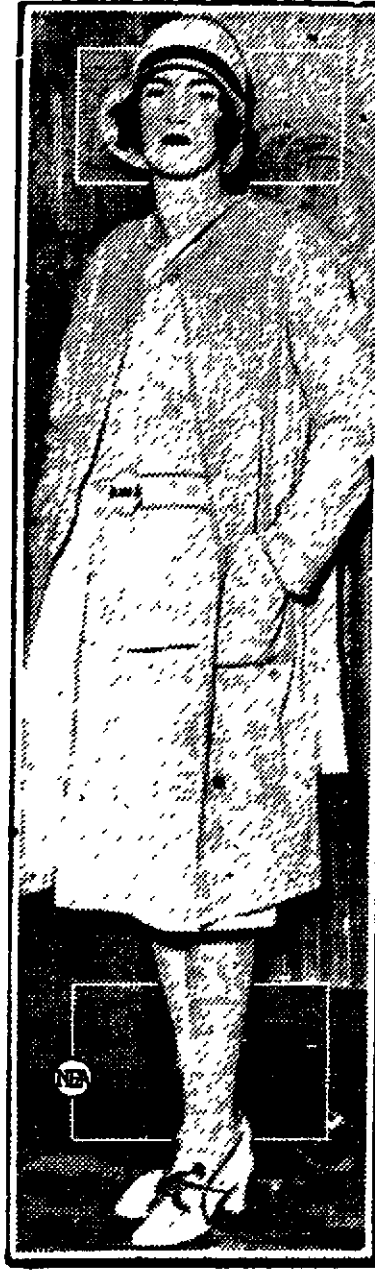

The dwarf soon led them up a lane. They found their trip was not in vain. Away up on a hillside they approached a little nook. "Here's where we stop," the queer dwarf cried. This is a dandy hiding place," and Clowny said, "Oh, look!"

They spied a chutes that circled round and led far down toward the ground. "Hop on," exclaimed the little dwarf, "and I will push each one." "Course your little time was spent in hopping on, and down they went. As Clowny slid along real fast, he shouted, "This is fun."

New Year Begins With Riot Of Color;
Jewels Grow More Important Each Day

Mrs. Langdon Post, Jr.

Frances Maher

Maude Tilton

BY BETSY SCHUYLER

NEW YORK—Such a send-off as smart New Yorkers gave the old year! 'Twas the gayest of pictures—his going-away party—flowers, colorful silks, gleaming satins, songs, smiles, twinkling feet over polished floors, elaborate feasting and making merry.

Much was made of watching the old year out at all the smart rendezvous, such as the Park Lane, St. Regis, the Ritz-Carlton, Sherry's, the Madison and the Embassy Club. Gay, colorful costumes seemed to have been agreed upon by the fashionable. At late dinner, which began the celebration at Sherry's, I noticed that the exception to gay color was the delicate white gown which little Betty Lee wore. Her mother, Mrs. Albert Randall Lee, chose black, scintillating with crystals like dewdrops along the edge of the tiers of her chignon gown.

Blue, ever a charming color for youth with its freshness, is having an extremely startling vogue. Natalie Wales looked startlingly lovely and young in a periwinkle blue velvet frock, with sweetheart roses. Anne Storrs had a stunning sapphire blue satin evening gown, with chic cut and trim, topped by a matching blue velvet bolero.

Mrs. Robert Chandler wore a midnight blue taffeta sprigged with silver stars for the new year's celebration at the St. Regis. Her accessories of blue slippers with silver and blue scarf and silver hosiery with open work, stars of infinitesimal size completed the charm of her gala attire.

I have mentioned that hair grows long and more individual as to cut. Betty Henderson now wears hers close to the head, clustering the gleaming ends in a knot at the back.

Mrs. Taylor Scott Hardin, of Boston, visiting here, dresses her hair becomingly off her forehead, drawing softly into a small knot low on the neck and is addicted to wearing the most charming little earrings, called "earlines" because they daintily outline the lobes. She has one lovely pair of delicate corals, set in fine gold.

JEWELS IN LIMELIGHT
Jewels grow more important every day. Mrs. James Parrish wore a gorgeous diamond necklace the other evening with a very smart black velvet dress that had long, tiered sides, and no other adornment whatsoever, save the necklace. Not that more was needed. Those diamonds were too lovely for words.

Mrs. John Barry Ryan, Jr., recently returned from a long honeymoon abroad, when lunching at Pierres, had on a neat brown tweed suit with long coat and throw collar with its edges finished in fur. An unusual fur touch was sponsored by Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, a cushion collar and long, deep, muff-cuffs of sable on a gold evening coat cut quite severely.

With the New Year thoughts of the South fly uppermost. Mrs. James H. Snowden has a traveling ensemble of beige kaisha tucked its entire length in wavering lines, colored in caracul. She completes the ensemble by one of the new "off and on the ear" hats, one side of the turban turning down over her ear, the other turned straight back and held there by a cute little brown fancy.

Yokes seem most important in many of the new Palm Beach clothes smart Social Registerites are showing their friends. Frances Maher has a sweet tan sports outfit of rough silk that has a kaisha coat with a quaint round yoke that runs over the sleeves, making little caps for them, and fashioning the throw collar too. The frock of her suit has its natural waistline emphasized by a buckle.

Maude Tilton's new midnight blue coat, with tricky little embroidery up the front, has a similar yoke, though hers has its sleeves set in. New, too, is the below the hip flare. It almost seems that the lower the flare the more chic it has. Mrs. Langdon Post, Jr., has little godets set into the lower portion of her new black Lillo cloth coat, with its charming natural lynx collar and cuffs.

THE NEW Saint-Sinner

COPYRIGHT 1928 BY Anne Austin NEA SERVICE INC.

By the time Bob Hathaway had reached his home, after Cherry's frantic summons, the cold paralysis of horror, in which Faith and Tony had been gripped had partially passed away, and all those who had gathered in Faith's living room to try to solve the mystery of Crystal's disappearance were making great efforts to reassure each other—except Sandy, who sat silent and scowling.

"What's this absurd story about a ransom letter?" Bob demanded. It was Tony who explained, showing him the envelope, with its pasted-up address, the front page torn from the Stanton Morning Star, and her own record of the letter's "translation."

Bob had been determined to laugh it off, but as he listened and looked, his good-looking, tanned, young face became putty-colored. "Well," he drew a deep breath, and glanced from one frightened face to another, until his eyes rested on Alan Boardley. "What do you think, Boardley? Lord, I'm stumped. I don't know what to think."

"I think the thing is genuine enough," Boardley admitted reluctantly. "As clever a ransom letter as I ever heard of. My advice is that you take it at once to the police."

"No, no," Faith cried. "Look what it says: 'They'll kill Crystal. You won't. Bob? Bob?'"

Very tenderly Bob Hathaway took his wife into his arms. "I shan't do anything you don't want me to do, honey. Try to get a grip on yourself. We'll get her back, don't you worry."

Cherry laughed hysterically. "I'll bet Crystal is trying to stamp her way to freedom this minute. She'd figure that's what a movie heroine would do and—"

"Shut up, Cherry!" Bob commanded harshly. "Any suggestions, Boardley—Ross?" he added, turning toward Sandy.

It was Alan Boardley who answered. "I suggest you do as the

WOMAN HEAD OF THOUSANDS OF REINDEER

Seattle, Wash.—(AP)—A woman has assumed a place of leadership among Alaskan Eskimos in the reindeer industry and owns one of the largest native herds in Alaska. Throughout the territory she is known only as Reindeer Mary.

This Eskimo woman owns some 2,000 reindeer valued at approximately $20,000. The size of her herd has increased rapidly each year and in a few years is expected to be several times as large as at present.

Reindeer Mary started her herd several years ago, after the death of her husband. For a long time she did all the work herself, but the increase in numbers of the animals resulted in the employment of helpers until at present she has several "reindeer boys," whose work is much like that of the American cowboy.

Each year she sells enough reindeer through the cooperation of the Alaska division of the United States bureau of education to pay all expenses, make a profit and still maintain a steady expansion of the herd.

WIFE DRIVES
THE FIRE TRUCK,
HUBBY AT HOSE

Coleman, Texas.—(AP)—Although she is often compelled to leave the family's meals cooking on the stove, Mrs. Leonard Lee, wife of this town's only paid fireman, thoroughly enjoys driving a speeding truck to a fire.

Necessity made her a "fire woman." The Lees have a home on the second floor of the fire station and her husband usually is the only fireman on duty. So when both the chemical truck and the hose and ladder wagon are needed to battle a blaze, she takes the steering wheel of the truck.

An expert driver, she usually reaches the scene of a fire before her husband and volunteer firemen arrive.

Proper Arrangement

In this living room note how the fireplace group blends together—furniture, floor and walls.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles written for Appleton Post-Crescent and NEA Service by William H. Wilson, vice president of the American Furniture Mart and an acknowledged authority on interior decoration and period furniture.

BY WILLIAM H. WILSON
Written for NEA Service
IX plane surfaces—four walls, floor and ceiling—compose the usual room. The problem of arrangement is to place furniture, fixtures and decorations so that each separate surface by itself is balanced pleasantly, at the same time blending into a harmonious whole.

Each chair must be placed so that it conforms to what is behind it on the wall, and underneath it on the floor. Pictures and draperies cannot be considered separately, but must fit into the group formed by furniture and walls.

There are two means of achieving arrangement, absolute symmetry and balance. Taking a mantelpiece as an example: two duplicate candlesticks may be placed at the same distance from a clock in the center, and symmetry is achieved. Or a cigarette box may be placed where the candlesticks were, and two books of approximately the same size as the humidor placed in juxtaposition, giving balance.

In placing things upon the wall, it is well to remember that an optical illusion causes the eye to place the center of any space slightly above the mathematical middle. Pictures should be placed on the wall so that their optical center is on a level with the eye.

Pictures hung from moulding should be dropped on wires which run parallel with the bounding walls. When the wire is attached in the form of an inverted V, the wire does not conform to the lines of the room, and the arrow formed by the triangle tends to center vision on the hook, which is unimportant, while distracting from the picture.

PEAR AND RICE PUDDING
One pint canned pears, 4 tablespoons rice, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, 1/4 lemon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Wash rice well through several waters and let stand in cold water to cook for one hour. Drain heat milk in top of double boiler and add rice, sugar, grated rind and juice of lemon, butter and salt.

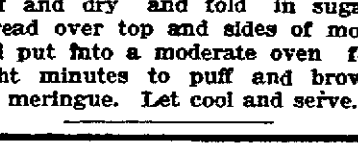

Cook over boiling water until rice is tender. Stir in yolks of eggs and cook, stirring constantly about 1 minute longer. Press into a shallow mold. When cold and firm remove from mold onto a large plate. Strain syrup from pears. If syrup is not heavy add 1/2 cup sugar to 1 cup of juice and boil rapidly until reduced to 1/2 cup. Add pears and vanilla and let stand until fruit is thoroughly heated. Arrange pears on top of rice mold and pour over syrup. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and fold in sugar. Spread over top and sides of mold and put into a moderate oven for eight minutes to puff and brown the meringue. Let cool and serve.

SWEDISH GIRLS
LEAVE COUNTRY
JOB TO MEN

Stockholm.—(AP)—The Swedish country lassies are leaving the farms and finding employment in the cities, as servant maids or office clerks. Their places are being filled with men who have to do such unmasculine chores as house work.

Even the inns in rural districts are feeling this lack of feminine help and are employing boys as dish washers. The employment agencies in Stockholm, Gothenburg, and other cities are constantly placing young men in such positions in the country, the girls preferring to stay in the big towns.

What Shall I Do
for Gray Hair?

By ALICE STRAWN

I am often asked for a good way to restore gray, faded or streaked hair. While there are many preparations on the market for the purpose, I know of nothing better than a mixture of good old sage tea and sulphur. You can either prepare the mixture at home, yourself, or as most women prefer, buy it already prepared and ready to use.

The correct recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, may be had in Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Compound. All druggists carry it and since the cost is only 75c a bottle, there is really no need for any woman to go to the bother of preparing it herself. You would be surprised if you knew the number of men and women who employ Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur because its use is undetectable.

You simply moisten a comb or a soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, one small strand at a time. By morning the gray disappears and another application or two sees your hair beautifully and evenly restored to its original color. There is no suggestion of that hard, dyed look that repels fastidious women. I advise any woman—or man—whose hair is turning gray to try Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur.

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

NEARBY
TOWNSEXTEND TIME
LIMIT TO PAY
TAXES TO CITY

Period Is Lengthened to March by Common Council
Tuesday Evening

Kaukauna—Kaukauna taxpayers will have until Thursday, March 1, to pay their taxes, it was decided at a meeting of the common council Tuesday evening in the council chambers of the municipal building. All the aldermen voted in favor of the extension with the exception of W. H. Cooper.

Alderman Cooper stated that over 80 per cent of the small taxpayers have their taxes paid by the end of January and that he couldn't see why an extension should be granted to the larger taxpayers, who could easily pay. Alderman E. Landreman stated that he was of the same opinion last year until several business men told him that the small taxpayer paid his taxes and neglected his other bills and as a result the businesses couldn't pay their taxes. Alderman H. Weisenbach said that an extension should be granted this year as a large number of persons are depending upon it. If no extension is to be granted next year the people will be warned early enough so that they can be prepared to pay within the time limit, but it is too late to do so this year, he said. Alderman N. Faust also stated that last year warning was given but the extension was granted again. Alderman B. Roberts said that an extension should be granted immediately.

DISCUSS BUS MEASURES
Alderman Landreman said that the bus drivers are not heeding the city bus regulations as to stopping for passengers and cutting corners. He advised that the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. be made to provide two terminals for which to take on and discharge passengers. He stated that too many stops were made in the city which hindered traffic and endangered other drivers of cars. The company should be made to have two terminals off the road, he said.

Alderman Cooper disagreed with Mr. Landreman as to having a terminal on the north side of the river. A terminal on the south side would be all right but the residents have to come to the bus stop and get on board buses, but the people on the north side would have to go out of their way to do so when the bus passes along their street, he said.

Alderman Weisenbach agreed with Alderman Landreman on having bus terminals. He said that it was time patience be exhausted with drivers who stop out in the road and cut corners.

Chief of Police McCarty stated that the bus regulations were being closely followed out on the north side of the city. He stated that he warned the drivers about cutting corners and that if they were still doing it they would be liable to arrest. He added that he had the corners watched but no reports were turned in that the regulations were being disregarded. He favored having a terminal on the south side of the city.

INVESTIGATION URGED
Alderman G. Smith advised that the bus committee investigate what is being done in other cities before action be taken. The council finally decided that this should be done and a report be made at the next meeting.

Three applications were read to the council by Alderman Smith, chairman of the Public Health and Education committee. They were from Miss Clara Fork of Lake Geneva, Miss C. E. Flynn of Neenah and Miss E. O'Day of Chicago. Mr. Smith said that he is investigating references and that a complete report will be made at the next meeting.

He stated that Miss Mattie Hayes has not yet handed in her official notice of resignation as the present city nurse.

Chief of Police McCarty handed in a report that stated there was some delinquent personal property taxes to be collected. The matter was referred to the city attorney. He handed in $20.38 personal property tax which was collected. One hundred ten dollars was handed in by the chief which was obtained from city license permits. He asked that the amount be put into the police pension fund. In former years the amount was turned over to the city. The council decided that the amount would be added to the pension fund.

City Clerk L. Wolf read a notice to the council of a public hearing to be conducted at Appleton courthouse at 9 o'clock Saturday morning as to whether the Fox River Bus company be granted a permit to operate buses between Appleton, Kimberly, Combined Locks and Kaukauna.

The letter of thanks to the Kaukauna American Legion for building the stone wall along the water front on Oak-st was presented to the council by Alderman Weisenbach. It was accepted by the council and a copy will be framed and presented to the Legion.

Alderman Lindstrom moved that the north road district committee have leave to buy the commissioner a car to use in his work. The council passed the motion and limited the amount to be spent to $150.

The meeting was adjourned until Tuesday, Jan. 22.

The Post-Crescent's representative at Kaukauna is Lloyd Deras. His telephone number is 194-W. Business with The Post-Crescent may be transacted through Mr. Deras.

SCORE MAYOR
FOR SIGNING
CITY CHECKS

Aldermen Move to Place Insurance Money into Kaukauna City Treasury

Kaukauna—Mayor W. C. Sullivan was severely criticized by several aldermen at a meeting of the common council Tuesday evening for signing three checks, totaling $100,000 received by the city as insurance on the life of the late J. O. Posson and placing them into a trust fund instead of putting them through the regular channels of the city clerk's and city treasurer's office.

Alderman Hugo Weisenbach brought up the matter and said that this mayor had no authority to sign the checks and asked for an explanation. He stated that the handling of the matter was all right up to the signing and disposal of the checks, which he stated were supposed to be signed by the city clerk and go into the city treasury. When the mayor said that he acted as claimant, Mr. Weisenbach stated that he could not receive the checks but could act as disposer of them. He moved that the money be put into the city's general fund. Alderman W. H. Cooper seconded the motion. Mr. Weisenbach said it was time that the warning be issued that the council is the supreme body and that all committees are responsible to it.

Alderman Cooper agreed with Mr. Weisenbach and said that the checks were issued by a good financial company and that the checks would be received at any bank. The money is at the present time in a trust fund in the First National bank. Cooper said that there were too many things taking place in the city which should be and are not being done with the knowledge and consent of the council. He said that the matter of disposing of the checks should have been referred to the council.

MAYOR EXPLAINS

Mayor Sullivan said that the checks were sent to the local insurance agent, who was instructed to hold them until an assignment for one of the policies was turned in to the company. This could not be found at first, the mayor said. The insurance company then advised the agent that if the city would send a signed letter promising to send in the assignment to the company as soon as it was found the checks would be given to the city.

The mayor said that this was done and that the checks were given to the city. He said that the checks sent were to be collected and not cash. For that reason they were put in the fund in the First National bank. It was the only thing that could be done, the mayor said.

There were many legal entanglements which had to be first taken to the Railroad commission for settlement on the first two policies and these wanted to be avoided on the third, he said, and the money was in the bank ready to be disposed in any way the council decided. He said the matter of disposal was in the hands of the Railroad commission and that Herbert Weckworth, superintendent of the local utilities, would leave for Madison Wednesday for the matter.

"This matter is brought up because of jealousy between the banks," the mayor said. "If it hadn't been for Charles Raught the city wouldn't have collected a cent of insurance on Mr. Posson, as Mr. Raught helped a great deal in getting the insurance."

DENIES BANK JEALOUSY

Alderman Lindstrom said that it was not jealousy between the banks as he had intended taking the matter up to see if the mayor had the authority to dispose of the money in the way he did.

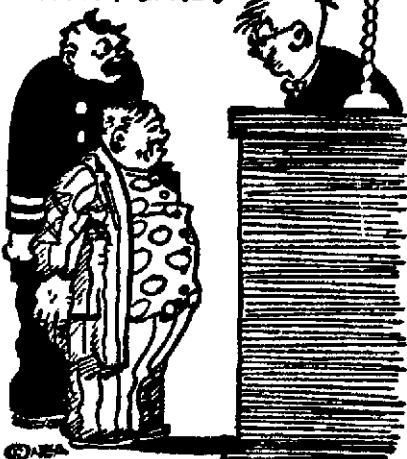

The mayor said that the money was really a part of the utility's money as they took out the policies and paid the premiums. He then stated that it would be a good thing if the money be put into a utility reserve fund. Alderman Landreman agreed with this suggestion.

MONAGHAN TAKES OF PAPERS FOR ALDERMAN'S JOB

Sixth Ward Resident Is First
Candidate to Enter Campaign for Spring Election

The first reminder of the spring election, in which six aldermen, two school commissioners, and the city's six superiors will be elected, was received Tuesday morning at the city hall with the application of Robert J. Monaghan, 820 N. Morrison-st. for nomination papers from Carl Becker, city clerk. Mr. Monaghan will unopposedly be the first to appear in the Sixth ward alderman whose term expires this spring is Philip Vogt.

Tuesday morning the second candidate applied for his papers at the clerk's office. He was Peter Rademacher, fifth ward supervisor, who will see reelection.

The spring election will be held Tuesday, April 1, and the primary election will take place on Tuesday, March 1 according to the city clerk. Nomination papers must be filed with the clerk not later than 20 days before the primary, or Tuesday, Feb. 19, Mr. Becker reported. Nomination papers could have been circulated since the last week in December.

Following is a list of aldermen whose terms expire this spring: First ward, Jack Glin; Second ward, John Dierick; Third ward, Walter Gmeiner; Fourth ward, Robert F. McMillan; Fifth ward, William H. Vanderkay; Sixth ward, Philip Vogt.

County board members are elected for two years; Appleton has six supervisors on a board, one from each ward. After their terms expire this spring, they are: Otto Thiesens, first ward; P. H. Ryan, second ward; T. Ryan, third ward; John Tracy, fourth ward; Peter Rademacher, fifth ward; Fred A. Sweet, sixth ward.

The terms of school commissioners also expire. They are William H. Kreissel, John F. Behnke, school commissioners are elected for a term of three years, while an alderman's term is only years.

Although Monaghan is the first candidate to file his nomination papers—or to go to the city clerk for papers, there are rumors among local politicians already lined up possible candidates. None of the aldermen who are standing in the term now have expressed their intentions one way or the other, although it is held that practically every one will be a candidate for the office.

Although none have been mentioned as alderman candidates in either the Fifth Second or Third wards, several persons either are considering filing the campaign or have been reached on the subject, it is reported.

Carl Becker, a former alderman and C. Wassenberg, both have been sought as candidates from the Fourth ward. In the Fifth ward the names Charles Rose and Wenzel Hasen, both former members of common council and Edward Klei have been associated with possibilities. In no instance has an alderman statement been forthcoming.

Papers for nomination for any candidate for office must be signed by voters of the ward in number not less than 25 percent of those who voted for the candidate receiving the highest number of votes for such office at the preceding city election, the law requires. The paper shall be filed not less than 20 days before the primary and no election shall sign for more candidates for each ward than there are persons to be elected to such office.

Because of a runways at the George A. Whitcomb post had not been rolled, the mail planes operating in the Fox valley between Milwaukee and Green Bay, was unable to land on its trip north about 11:20 p.m. Monday. As on Monday, how, the plane swooped low over the field and dropped the mail for delivery in Appleton. On the return trip, however, workmen had finished leveling the snow on the runway and the plane was able to land safely without difficulty.

Wednesday morning F. F. Wetten, actor-manager, had word that the air-mail plane left Milwaukee about 7:45 a.m. and that it would arrive Appleton much earlier than it has in the last few weeks. The plane was expected to reach here about 8:30 but due to inclement weather since the line started the daily it had been somewhat delayed.

Many Visitors On Hoover List For Next Few Days

BY JAMES L. WEST
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington (AP)—With characteristic dispatch and thoroughness, President-Elect Hoover is informing himself on political developments during his absence in Central and South America and obtaining the views of Republican party leaders in and out of congress on a maze of questions.

Picking up the conference where he left them off Monday night in a long conversation at his home with Vice President-Elect Charles Curtis, the next chief executive found a rather full engagement list facing him during his second day in Washington.

Senator Borah of Idaho, one of the foremost of the campaigners on his behalf, had been invited to the Hoover home for breakfast and a conference afterwards. The Idaho senator is in the forefront of those who insist that a comprehensive program of farm relief be enacted at an early session of the seventy-first congress.

Others on the engagement list of the president-elect at his temporary headquarters at the Mayflower hotel included Representative Walter Newton of Minnesota, who was chairman of the national speakers' bureau during the campaign; Robison of Kentucky; Free of California, and White of Maine, an Dr. Julius Klein, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce in the commerce department.

The president-elect also had on his waiting list the Washington city committee on inauguration ceremonies with a rather elaborate program.

Turning aside for a time from domestic affairs, Mr. Hoover had an engagement with the Brazilian ambassador, S. Gurgel do Amaral, who has been instructed by his government to officially express to the president-elect the appreciation of the Brazilian government for the visit of the Hoover mission to Rio de Janeiro.

For the present at least, Mr. Hoover has adopted the role of listener and according to his callers is offering no comments or suggestions of his own with respect either to cabinet and other appointments or to the question of when farm relief legislation should be put through.

ASK COMPENSATION FOR DEATH OF CHILTON MAN

Testimony in the case of the Edwin Weeks estate versus the Hoosier Engineering company of Kaukauna was taken at a hearing before Frank T. McCormick, industrial commissioner, at the courthouse Tuesday afternoon.

Weeks, who resided at route 7, Chilton, was killed instantly while assisting in erecting a steel standard in a high tension electric line. One of the poles of the standard accidentally touched a high tension wire and Weeks, who was working on the pole, was killed. The accident occurred September, 1927. Weeks' estate asks compensation for his death.

The hearing also was taken in the case of Lawrence Bohon, 533 N. Tonka-st., versus Martin and Boldt and Sons Construction company. Bohon, who was working for the Boldt company on the Elks' club addition in August, 1925, received a severe shock when he came in contact with a live wire. He asks compensation for temporary disability which, he claims, he suffered.

MADISON ATTORNEY TO TALK AT BAR MEETING

Burr W. Jones, Madison, former justice of the state supreme court, will be the speaker at the annual meeting of the Outagamie County Bar association at Hotel Northern Wednesday evening, Jan. 16. Officers of the group will be elected and plans for 1929 activities will be made. John Morgan is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. Other members of the committee are Raymond P. Dohr and Paul F. Cary, Sr. The committee is to meet this week to make final arrangements for the meeting.

11,000 DOGS MUST BE LICENSED IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee (AP)—Not only must the thousands of automobiles in Milwaukee be licensed for 1929, but this city's 11,000 dogs are asking that new tags be attached to their collars. John I. Drew, city treasurer, has issued a call for purchase of new plates for dogs. There were 11,697 dogs licensed here last year.

D. H. Cooney, executive vice president of the First National Bank of Menasha, attended the inauguration of Governor Walter J. Kohler at Madison Monday. Mr. Cooney was the guest of Colonel A. G. Panhach, who was head of the reception committee of Solomon Levison, state treasurer.

SEES PLACE FOR SMALL UNITS IN AUTO INDUSTRY

Belief That Business Is
"Battle of Giants" Is Erroneous, Reeves Says

New York (AP)—Speculation as to the result of price wars and the "battle of the giants" within the motor industry has been highly exaggerated, in the opinion of Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

"There will be plenty of competition in the automobile industry in 1929, but this does not mean there will not be a place for the small manufacturer who caters to a specialized trade," Mr. Reeves says.

"Competition in the automobile industry has, in many respects, been overemphasized. There is no more competition here than in any other product where style or brand is a factor in public preference."

"There may be further mergers of the larger companies this year, but the small manufacturers will all ways have a place. The new year will bring about growth in exports and an active domestic market stimulated by better looking, more efficient cars at reasonable prices."

He pointed out that the new records for automobile registrations showed the way to continued prosperity of the industry.

"For the first time in the history of man, there are more than 20,000,000 motor vehicles registered throughout the world. I believe this impressive total is more significant than any other fact on the motor horizon for 1929."

"Our experience in this country has been that motor use promotes motor use. We can look forward to a similar advance and larger volume of exports in other countries as well."

"In Central America, we find the work going all day for the price of a bus ride in the evening. This is significant. The ability to ride on wheels is so appealing to mankind that individuals are willing to work harder and more effectively in order to purchase transportation."

"There is no greater economic fallacy than the assumption that the purchasing power of the so-called

"Representatives of our organization have visited 52 countries in the last year. Many countries which seldom enter the daily conversations of most men are, nevertheless, increasingly good motor transportation customers. There are 32,000 cars, trucks and buses in Algeria; 6,000 in Luxembourg; 23,000 in British Malaya; 6,000 in Southern Rhodesia; 5,500 in Tunisia, and enormous markets in Australia, New Zealand and the Argentine."

TWO SUCCESSORS MENTIONED FOR BALLARD'S JOB

Public Property Superintendent Hasn't Learned of Governor's Intention

Madison (AP)—Clinton B. Ballard, state superintendent of public property, has been advised by friends that two others have been mentioned for appointment to his position. He was appointed at the outset of the previous administration by Gov. R. Zimmerman, and as the property office generally changes with administrations, being for only a two-year term at the pleasure of the governor, he has been expecting removal by Gov. Kohler.

Louis E. Schroeder of Milwaukee, now a state treasury agent for that region and Morris Blumenfeldt, a former superintendent, have been mentioned as his successors, he has been told, although he has had no intimation that their names have been presented to Gov. Kohler.

If the governor's campaign addresses in which he proposed a state purchasing agent to take care of all the public property department purchases materialize into legislation, the conditions in the office might be so altered or a change so postponed that Mr. Ballard might serve for a considerable period.

Gov. Kohler's attitude in this respect has not been made public.

Flu Epidemic Is Creating Record Demand For Vicks

375,000 Jars Every 24 Hours
Needed to Keep the Nation
Supplied with Vapor-Salve

Flu Milder But Widespread

That the public has not forgotten the lesson of 1918 is indicated by its prompt response to the warnings of health authorities to combat the flu by keeping free of colds.

The demand for Vicks VaporRub the vaporizing salve which proved so valuable during the 1918 epidemic, has already shattered by a wide margin all previous records.

Although the capacity of the Vicks laboratories has been tripled since 1918, they are once more operating night shifts to meet the national emergency.

The present output of more than 375,000 jars a day almost staggers the imagination. It means that every 60 seconds, day and night, over 2,500 jars of Vicks are going out to check the nation's colds and help ward off the flu.

Mild though it is in comparison with 1918, this year's epidemic has already affected more than a million persons, and it is apparently still increasing. Adv.

Post-Crescent Skating Races Postponed For Week

RINKS BURIED IN SNOW AND SKATERS CAN'T PRACTICE

Final Date for Entries Set for Next Week Thursday

THE Post-Crescent skating races scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 13, have been postponed for a week. It was announced Tuesday when investigation proved there is little chance of having ice this week because Jones park rink is buried in snow, and because skaters haven't had a chance to practice for the last week. It also has been found that there have been few days this winter on which the ice at Jones park was such that it was good for fast skating.

Plans now are to have the races next week on Sunday, Jan. 20, providing the weather man becomes reasonable and skaters have a chance to practice. Because street department employees all are removing snow from streets there is no chance for them to get at the ice rinks.

But postponing of the races doesn't mean that filling of entry blanks should be postponed. The final entry date originally was Thursday but because the races have been postponed a week so has the closing of the entry list. And in the meantime the entry blanks will continue to appear daily on the sport page of the Post-Crescent, that is necessary to enter the race is to clip and fill out the blank and bring or mail it to the Skating Editor of the Post-Crescent.

Interest in the races seems to be picking up despite the fact there has been little time for skating and about 25 entries now have been received. However, there should be about 35 coming and the sooner they're in the better.

Nothing new has developed on the program of entries to be furnished by Dan Blissett, Oshkosh figure skater, who will be an added attraction at the races. Mr. Blissett has performed for several years at tournaments in this section of the state but so far this is the first time he has appeared in Appleton.

Gold medals, skating figures and a silver cup are the prizes for winners of this year's races. Medals will be awarded to the skater in each event and the skating figures to the boy winning the championship while the champions will battle for another figure. The winner of the girls races will receive a silver cup.

KIMBERLY CAGERS PREP FOR KOHLER

Invaders Again Led by Louis Loose Former Local Star

Kimberly — The Kimberly Club cagers are working hard to get in shape for their game here Friday night when they hope to beat the strong Kohler five that stars Louis Loose.

Practice was held Monday night and shooting took up most of the time. A short scrimmage followed and the boys were ordered to report again Wednesday at 4:30. It is hoped that a practice game can be arranged with Lawrence college for this time.

Dewey Williams who has been unable to play since the beginning of the season on account of an injured leg reported for practice Monday night. Although he will not be in the best of condition by Friday it is expected that he will be in shape to start the game and see quite a bit of action. He worked fairly well in scrimmages Monday and if the after effects aren't too great he should be ready to go in Friday's game.

The game is the "big game" of the year and as there is no college or high school game at Appleton, a record breaking crowd is expected to attend.

PURDUE, ILLINOIS WIN BIG TEN GAMES

"Stretch" Murphy Towers Over Midget Chicagoans; Counts 11 Times

Chicago — (AP) — The road to the western conference basketball title promises to be rough for the team that would win the championship. Already, within the season not a week old, three of the four favorites have fallen by the wayside only Purdue of the four teams slated to fight it out the title remains undefeated while tied with Michigan.

Considered a first division finisher but not of championship stuff, Iowa is the only other undefeated five in the conference, having won its one Big Ten game while Purdue and Michigan have won two each.

Indiana was the latest favorite to fall, succumbing Tuesday night to Illinois at Champaign, 20 to 16.

The Illini, which have a yearly habit of knocking off the "big boys" when least expected played a slow, cautious game that had the Hoosiers baffled. It was Indiana's first victory in two starts. Purdue defeated the Illini in the season's opener.

Purdue won its second game, defeated Chicago at Bartlett Gym 28 to 25, mainly because "Stretch" Murphy outscored the midget maroon five to score 14 goals. Chicago's battling style of play proved effective at times but just as often its awkwardness left wide openings, and usually Murphy was standing inside of the free throw line, ready to receive the ball. Glen Harmon, was the only other Hoosier-maker to make more than one basket but he flashed some beautiful floor work, particularly in dribbling.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

BACK in the days when it was legal to drink a beer the New York ball players used to drink beer at the Amsterdam Inn up near the Polo Grounds. . . . There weren't any club detectives at the time and the boys were allowed to stay up late in the garden behind the inn. The kitchen in the inn closed at midnight and when the boys wanted to eat after they had to go elsewhere. . . . They knew a popular little spot on 145th street near Broadway. . . . It was a little one-arm hole in the wall joint where a young singing chef made a mean hamburger plastered with onions and pickles. . . . The chef sang and dished out wise cracks while he was churning and then shored out the sandwiches through a hole, came out from behind and served them. . . . And the chef who did this was Jack Mulhall. . . . The fillum fellow.

INDICATIONS ARE DEMPSEY WILL TRY A COMEBACK SOON

Former Champion Expected to Announce Plans Thursday

BY ALAN J. GOULD Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (AP) — Jack Dempsey is expected to announce definitely Thursday he has decided to carry out Tex Rickard's wish that he return to the ring this year in an attempt to regain the heavyweight championship of the world.

At first perhaps inclined to give up all thought of a comeback, as a result of the shock of losing the world title to Gene Tunney, Dempsey now seems to think that he could do nothing more appropriate than carry on as the promoter would have wished.

Unless there is a shake-up in the program, this means Dempsey's next and probably last fight will take place at the Yankee stadium some time in September, more than ten years after he won the heavyweight title from Jess Willard and three years, to the month, after he lost it to Gene Tunney.

His opponent will be selected, if Rickard's well-laid plans go through, from an elimination process involving four men. Two of them, Young Stripling and Jack Sharkey, will fight the first test match at Miami Beach, Feb. 27, in a bout which will find Dempsey in a promoter's role for the first time. Paulino Uzcudun and Tom Heeney, unless the latter decides not to compete, will meet in a second elimination contest in May, the winner to box the victor of the Sharkey-Stripling match to decide Dempsey's opponent. Heeney's place may be filled by some other contender but three preliminaries to the grand climax are planned.

Dempsey may qualify his announcement of a forthcoming comeback to the extent of saying it depends on whether he can regain his old fighting condition. Those close to him, however, do not believe any serious doubts will arise.

The directors of Madison Square Garden, whether or not they have their eye on Dempsey as a possible successor to Rickard's title role in boxing, are understood to favor a fighting comeback by the former champion. For one thing, they are anxious to further Rickard's program for a revival of heavyweight interest by crowning Tunney's successor, at the same time endeavoring to recoup the losses suffered in 1928.

Without the participation of Dempsey, it is not believed any series of heavyweight tests would produce a generally recognized champion or develop much financial profit.

CURRIE FAMILY AGAIN WINS FROM KUNITZ

Just to show that their victory a few days ago was 14 carat gold, the members of the Currie family bowling team took on the members of the Kunitz family in another match game Tuesday on Elk alleys and triumphed by a decisive margin. The score was 1,630 to 1,454.

Peculiarly enough the youngest member of the Kunitz triumvirate was the highest scorer. Bobby Kunitz hit 510 pins while brother Carl and Oscar Kunitz picked up 449 and 495 respectively. The Currie family scores showed some real bowling. Robert Currie getting a 593 from games of 229, 166 and 204. Clarence Currie's count was 555 while Miss Louise topped 482 maps.

Around The Sport World

WASN'T A PLAY AT ALL

TWICE in the Army-Stanford football game, Red Cagle, the Army's All-American back, took the pass from center and started to run with it. He then reversed his field, ran back in the direction of his own goal and completed a forward pass.

Because the play was staged under identical circumstances and because the same receiver caught the perfect pass for long gains, the Stanford defense thought it was a brilliant play.

Even Pop Warner, who can diagram from memory almost any play that ever has been used, said after the game that Bill Jones, the Army coach, had given his boys a smart play even if it was very dangerous if it failed.

IT JUST WORKED

Cagle was in New Orleans during the holidays and it happened that his visit came at the same time of the annual meeting of the football coaches. He was asked to explain the workings of the play.

"We didn't have any play like that," he said. "The play I tried to start called for me to run with the ball. Each time I saw the Stanford forwards crashing through on me and it didn't take much time to decide that I couldn't gain anything in that direction. I didn't want to be caught right in my tracks so it was up to me to get rid of the ball."

"I did the reckless thing of running back and reversing my field, but luck was with me. I couldn't run clear back to the goal line so I had to turn and each time I turned I saw a receiver in the open and I let him have it. It was singular that each of those two plays went the same way and they must have looked as if they were mapped."

"I don't agree that it was a smart play. Under other circumstances it would have been unfortunate because it had too much of the element of a long chance at the time and I felt that the circumstances would permit me to take the chance and I took it."

NAVY THE BIG THRILL Cagle played the greatest game of his career last season. He made every All-American team in the country and he was admitted by practically every coach who saw him to be one of the best all-around backs of all time.

He distinguished himself particularly this year in the game against Yale, the first game in which the Army had a chance to show its real class. Cagle was a marked man that day, but he played the most spectacular game of his career and did enough to make the All-American on that one performance.

He didn't remember much about that game, he told his friends in New Orleans. He ran a couple of times with the ball and got away for some long gains, but they were all too busy to think of outside gains.

"The biggest thrill I got out of football was in the Navy game the year before when I got away for a 49-yard run for a touchdown. The Navy game is the only one that ever did count to a cadet and I wish the two academies were still playing," he said.

KUNITZ FAMILY WINS MATCH MAPLE GAME

A margin of four pins is all that saved Oscar Kunitz and his two sons from losing a match bowling game to H. Wegner and sons on Eagle bowling alleys recently. The final count for the afternoon's work was 1,447 to 1,448. The first game went to the Kunitz family by one pin, the second was tied up and the third went to the Kunitz family again, this time by three pins. Scores:

LAWRENCE BOXERS ON MILWAUKEE CARD

Robert English and Ellis Joseph at M. A. C. Wednesday Night

Robert English, and Ellis Joseph, will represent Lawrence college at amateur boxing bouts being held in Milwaukee Wednesday evening. English and Joseph will both fight in the 135 pound class, and will probably be matched up with boxers from the University of Wisconsin.

English and Joseph are both considered excellent boxers. English was the all campus champion in the lightweight class last year. Joseph who lives in Singapore, China, will be representing Lawrence for the first time, but Coach Rasmussen expects him to come through in fine style.

The Lawrence college mat squad will meet some high class competition next Saturday afternoon when it meets the University of Wisconsin wrestling team. Matches will be held in the Lawrence gymnasium and will start at 2 o'clock. All students will be admitted by showing their student activity ticket, and town admirers of the sport will be charged fifty cents.

Coach Rasmussen has not as yet announced his complete lineup, but some of the probable starters are Bickel, Krohn, Barfell, and Amundson.

U. W. CAGERS MEET CHICAGO, INDIANA

Madison — The Chicago and Indiana cage teams represent the second pair of week-end opponents ahead of "Doc" McQuinn's Wisconsin basketball squad. On Saturday of this week the short passing Badgers will journey to the Midway for a tilt with the Maroons, one of the best defensive fives in the Big Ten.

Cosch Nels Norgren's boys exhibited unexpected strength last week when the undefeated Butler team was taken into camp by Chicago at Bartlett gymnasium. The Cardinal tilters return home on Sunday for the second home tilt of the conference season with the co-champs of 1928, Indiana.

GARDEN SHOWED LOSS DURING LAST 6 MONTHS

New York — (AP) — Madison Square Garden suffered a net loss of nearly $235,000 for the six months ending Nov. 30, published financial reports reveal. The actual loss was $233,121 compared with a net profit of $381,008 for the same period of 1927.

For the quarter ending Nov. 30 the Garden showed a net profit of $75,327 compared to a net profit of $319,912 for the same period in 1927. The losses can be attributed to the failure of the Turner-Heeney and Mandell-McLarnin bouts to arouse the popular interest that the Dempsey-Tunney and Dempsey-Sharkey bouts did in 1927.

PLAN WHIRLIGIG MEET ON ELK CLUB ALLEYS

Appleton bowlers will have a chance at tournament bowling Saturday afternoon and evening, when a whirligig tournament will be staged on Elk Club alleys. Entry fees will be $2 per team or $1 per man, and will be limited to Appleton bowlers only. Four alleys will be open for tournament bowling while the remaining six will be open for public use.

POWER OF A'S TO BE UNKNOWN UNTIL PLAYING BEGINS

Manager Mack Has Made Numerous Changes and May Make More

NOTE — This is the third of a series of stories dealing with the winter prospects of major league baseball clubs. Others will follow day by day.

BY PAUL A. WEADON Associated Press Staff Writer

Philadelphia — (AP) — Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, has added an outfielder and weeded out a lot of mediocre material, but the strength of the 1929 Athletics must remain somewhat of a puzzle to baseball fans until he looks over his team in spring training, or executes a few more trades to plug up supposedly weak spots.

The Athletics' most pressing need was an outfielder, or two to replace Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, veterans who retired last fall, and Walter French, utility fly-chaser, who also went on the voluntary retired list. After a month's dickering with Cleveland, Manager Mack obtained the Veteran Homer Summa at an undisclosed cash price, thus giving the Athletics four outfielders — Al Simmons, Bing Miller, Mule Haas, and Summa.

It appears certain that Mack will negotiate another deal or two, if possible, before he is satisfied with the outfit that finished only a few games behind the champion New York Yankees last year.

Another new player signed is John O'Rourke, a Seattle youth who will be third string catcher. He is a son of Tim O'Rourke, who played with Louisville while Mack was catching for Pittsburgh many years ago. Those released included Joe Bush, veteran pitcher; Joe Hauser, first baseman, and several youngsters.

Eddie Collins is back as captain and principal adviser, with Bill Gleason, Ira Thomas and Earl Mack as assistants to the lanky leader. The only significant announcement made by Manager Mack recently was that Ossie Orwoll, slugging left handed pitcher, no longer would be used in the box. Orwoll probably will play first base or substitute in the outfield, his place on the pitching staff having been taken by Carroll Yerkes, having been taken by Carroll Yerkes, the old Red Sox second baseman. Jimmy Fox, probably will replace Sammy Hale on third base, leaving Orwoll and Dykes to fight it out for first. Either can be used in the outfield.

Jack Boley at short-stop and Max Bishop, second baseman, are fixtures at the middle defense, with Hale and Joe Hassler as infield reservists.

The pitching staff virtually is unchanged. Mack expects great things from Earnshaw, who was not in good playing condition when purchased by the Athletics from Baltimore last June.

The Athletics' roster follows:

Pitchers — Quinn, Rommel, Earnshaw, Ehmeke, Shobes, Walberg, Grove and Yerkes.

Catchers — Cochran, Perkins and O'Rourke.

Infielders — Fox, Orwoll, Bishop, Boley, Dykes and Hassler.

Outfielders — Simmons, Haas, Miller and Summa.

This Sport Story May Interest Movie Fans

BY BOB MATHERNE

THIS is the story of a young halfback of a few seasons ago who passed up a chance to make himself 5000 bucks by playing five games of pro football in order to be on deck if he later landed a post-season football game they were dickering for.

The point is—he passed up the 5000 bucks, played in the post-season football game and landed in the movies! Perhaps this story belongs on the movie page, but it is on the sports page because the hero is Johnny Mack Brown who, as the caption writer for "Our Dancing Daughters" wrote, is the greatest halfback the University of Alabama ever has had.

It isn't exactly news that Mack Brown is in the movies and has been for some time. Nor is it news that Mack Pickford is going to make a talkie of "Coquette," the stage play which Helen Hayes is taking about the country now after a successful run in New York.

It does seem news, however, to tell how Johnny Mack Brown wanted to make those 5000 bucks and had to be argued out of it because Alabama had a chance to play Washington in the annual "Tournament of Roses" game in 1926.

ORANGE TURNED PRO

The news of Red Grange having turned pro wasn't so very cold when Alabama beat Georgia on Thanksgiving Day, 1925 and won a second consecutive championship game.

It had been announced also that Ernie Nevers, Stanford star, was turning pro for $25,000 for some games down in Florida.

Going back on the train that night to Tuscaloosa, one heard a lot of talk about Alabama's chances to play Washington in the annual "Tournament of Roses" game at Pasadena on New Year's Day—and also a lot of talk that some of the Alabama players had received offers to play pro football.

Brown was one of them. He had been offered 1000 bucks per five games to play with Nevers' team. Brown is not from a rich family. Nor from one which has been dealt with kindly by the fates. There were several young Browns either in or about ready for college and $5000 looked like an awful lot of money to Mack Brown.

It reached the proportions of looking like as much money as Johnny Mack Brown would be able to earn in at least two years after he was out of college.

CONTROL QUESTION CAUSES SPLIT IN SALVATION ARMY

Believe Matter Will Be Thoroughly Threshed Out at Meeting

BY MILTON BRONNER
New York Times Staff Writer

London.—The high council of an international social and religious army, split into two opposing camps Tuesday began a battle over the most important question of its 50 years' history.

Meeting at Sunbury-on-Thames, officials of the Salvation Army are to decide whether their organization is to continue under the rule of a Booth dynasty or whether it is to become a democratic body in which the chief shall be selected from and by the membership.

General William Booth founded the Salvation Army 50 years ago. For 34 years he presided over its destinies, an autocrat and a capable one.

From a purely local body, he saw it grow into a worldwide association. From a body that used to be the butt of the hoodlums, he saw it grow into a great institution which all people and creeds hail for its beneficent work.

NOMINATES SON
Before he died in 1912, William Booth nominated his son, Bramwell Booth, to be General in his place. The latter, now in his 72nd year, has nominated his successor and the name appears in a sealed envelope in the vaults of the main London office of the army.

The General of the Salvation Army now has complete control, as he is the sole trustee of its immense interests. But for some time General Booth has been incapacitated by illness and some of the members of the higher organization determined it was time to take action. They are governed by a deep belief which is founded has drawn up. It was drafted by Charles Sargent, later a Lord Justice of England, Premier Asquith and Lord Haldane.

This document provides that a General of the Army can be removed if he is adjudicated mentally unfit, if he is found guilty of notorious misconduct, or if he is simply adjudicated to be unfit. Proceedings are being taken under the last of these alternatives.

The deed provides that a High Council to pass on these matters may only be held when at least seven high officers demand it. When such a demand is made, the High Council must meet, the officers dropping all other duties and attending. The summoning of such a council is an abrogation of any nomination the General may have made as to his successor.

MANY TAKE PART
Those who will take part in the deliberations are 29 Commissioners, including Commander Evangeline Booth of the United States; 18 Lieutenant Commissioners, 8 Colonels, 8 Lieutenant Colonels and 3 Brigadiers.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS... By Laufer

CHAMPIONS come and champions go in most sports within a few years of each other, but Jimmy Smith has been a champion bowler for the past 25 years and probably will be as long as he cares to roll a ball down an alley.

Seems as if a fellow who has been pre-eminent in his particular field for 25 years would have enough of the racket, but not Jimmy Smith. He is tramping about the country today, from coast to coast, giving exhibitions and engaging in special matches, and showing no signs of being willing to call it enough.

No one took this former pinbo from Brooklyn seriously back in 1905 when he beat Jimmy Voorhees in a match that had all bowlers around Brooklyn, Newark and vicinity agog at his ability. But consistency won't win him over and he was soon recognized as the champion of the bowlers.

Smith has bowled 16 perfect games—not counting the perfect scores he has made while practicing or in friendly games.

He once toppled 7311 pins in 24 games at Denver, which means he averaged 243 pins per game.

At Toronto in 1911 he cracked 771 pins in three games, an average of 257 per game to set a world record for tournament play.

You could go on naming records for hours that this bowler has made if you wished. And it would take a rather large number to tell of the trophies he has won.

CHAMBER HOPES TO INCREASE AIR MAIL COMING INTO CITY

Orders 5,000 Letter Stickers for Distribution Among Business Men

An effort to increase the volume of incoming air mail in Appleton is to be made by the chamber of commerce. It was announced by Kenneth Corbett, secretary. The chamber has ordered 5,000 letter stickers printed, and these will be distributed among business men with the plea to use them on their letters. The stickers will bear reminders to use the air mail and will be attached to the letters and not to the envelopes, according to Mr. Corbett. It is believed that this plan will increase the volume of air mail received by local business places.

Very little airmail is coming into Appleton according to a letter received by Mr. Corbett from Martin P. Kelly, traffic manager of the North-West Airways, Inc., St. Paul. The report was based on records up to the first of the year.

100 POUND AVERAGE
Excluding the first day, this city's volume of outgoing airmail has averaged about 10 pounds. Mr. Kelly reported. The volume must be increased however, both here as well as in other valley cities, if the air transportation company is to realize any success from its contract, the letter stated. Efforts will be directed particularly toward increasing the incoming volume.

Circulars describing how business uses air transportation, prepared by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Washington, D. C., have been received by the local chamber and will be forwarded to the Appleton postoffice for distribution to local business men.

GIVES TIME SCHEDULES
The circulars give the time schedule for all the contract air mail routes, show a map of the air mail and express services throughout the United States, and list the principal articles sent by air.

Articles used by banks, insurance companies, and by business houses, and sent by air mail are listed as follows:

Banks—Checks, drafts and notes for collection and credit; saving interest charges on funds in transit; advices of payment of drafts; and important and rush letters, letters to connect with mail to Europe and other foreign destinations, shipping documents; securities; urgent correspondence to connect with foreign mails.

Insurance companies—Letters, including authorizations, releases, etc., applications, policy contracts, and proofs of loss; daily reports card records, monthly accounts and statistical statements; all policies to supplies to agents; checks for claims, policy loans and cash values; surety and contract bonds, legal papers, farm mortgages and occasional securities—re-insurance claims.

Business houses—Contract and credit letters, documents, and sales promotion materials; advertising proofs and copy of proof for approval; news pictures and photographic mats; small package repair parts, articles urgently needed at destination; announcement of new products; rush shipments of samples and "out of stock" merchandise.

Any mailable matter except perishable matter liable to damage by freezing, may be sent by air mail. Packages must not exceed 50 pounds in weight or 81 inches in length and girth combined. Air mail may be registered or sent special delivery, the limit of indemnity by the postoffice department for registered mail being $1,000. Packages by air mail may also be sent C. O. D. and insured, the limit of insurance indemnity being $100.

HIGHER RATE TO MEXICO
Mail sent by United States Air Mail service for dispatch to foreign countries takes the domestic air mail rate of 5 cents for the first ounce and 10 cents for each additional ounce to all countries enjoying the 2-cent per ounce rate of ordinary postage. For other countries to which the rate of 5 cents for the first ounce and 10 cents for each additional ounce applies—the domestic air mail rate plus 3 cents for the first ounce or fraction and 1 cent for each additional ounce or fraction is required except Mexico to which a flat rate of 20 cents for each ounce or fraction applies.

Distinctive envelopes with blue, white and red markings are recommended for air mail letters but are not necessary. Write or stamp the words "Air Mail" prominently on the envelope, the circular advises. Shipments by air express service include:

General express traffic of almost every kind, single pieces not over 200 pounds, 60 inches long, 19 inches wide (four inches deep) or over 40 inches long and 106 inches in combined length and girth.

Shipments up to $5,000 in value, including money and jewelry. Perishables when properly packed, moving picture films, wearing apparel, mercantile commodities, sporting goods, retailers' supplies, small machine parts, etc.

C. O. D. shipments made and special delivery service rendered.

EXPERTS DESCRIBE HOW WATER IS PERIL IN FIRE
New York.—(AP)—A warning from the Underwriters Laboratories tells how water is becoming less general as a fire extinguisher as applied science develops synthetic materials.

For wood, paper, textiles, rubbish and all ordinary combustible materials, the warning says that water still holds its quenching power. But when oils, greases and gasoline are concerned, water adds to the peril by spreading the flames, and the foam or heavy gas type of extinguisher is needed.

How To Play Bridge

Trumps, South three. No Trumps; East and West passing each time. At both games, because of the singleton King of Clubs, South would bid a four-card Heart suit with four honors in preference to No Trump. North would bid No Trump in preference to Club because his strength in Diamonds would be denied by a Club bid over South's Heart.

7. To trick 2, East should lead the Four Diamonds, South should play the Trey, West the Eight and North the King.

8. To trick 3, North should lead the Ace of Clubs, East should play the Five, South the King and West the Deuce. Declarer leads the Ace of Clubs and drops his Dummy's King so as to be able to continue his long Clubs and establish them while he has an entry left in his Close Hand (the Ace of Diamonds). Played in this way North and South will make at least five Clubs, two diamonds, two Hearts and two Spades.

Killing your partner's King, like trumping your partner's Ace is sometimes justifiable.

HIGH FINANCE METHODS ADOPTED BY FISHERMEN
Portland, Me.—(AP)—Wholesale fish concerns here complain that some scallop fishermen have emulated the methods of get-rich-quick financiers.

They assert they have been buying "watered stock." Some of the Casco Bay small boatmen, who are dragging giant scallops this winter, the buyers aver, shuck out the meat and soak it overnight in fresh water.

This, it is said, causes the scallops to swell appreciably and take on much weight. Twenty pounds in their natural state grow to 25 pounds after 13 hours of soaking. It is hard to detect such doctoring by appearance although the "fresh water cure" is said to detract considerably from the fine flavor of the scallop.

INSANITY IN RUSSIA OVERFLOWS ASYLUMS
Moscow.—(AP)—Russia has encountered a serious problem in caring for her insane citizens. There are only 17 lunatic asylums in the whole country, with accommodations for 27,000 persons. The public health authorities say that there are five times that number of lunatics in Russia who ought to be looked up.

Money for this purpose is hard to obtain in Russia and some of the existing asylums need repairs. There are no funds available for building new ones. The state finds it difficult to retain the 11,000 employees who care for inmates.

Their dormitory facilities are crowded and working conditions are far from attractive. Many have quit their jobs on the ground that they could work longer without losing their own minds.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
ASHTORETH ASHE, a beautiful little stenographer, is having an exciting time on shipboard with an Englishman named JACK SMYTHE, who looks exactly like the Prince of Wales. Ashtoreth is taking a cruise to the West Indies for her health. Her roommate is MONA DE MUSSET, a mysterious and beautiful lady, whom Smythe distinctly dislikes. He tells Ashtoreth that Mona is notoriously unattractive.

But Ashtoreth refuses to give up her transient friendship with the Frenchwoman, who has been particularly sweet and generous to her.

Mona goes ashore to visit friends at St. Thomas, the first island at which the ship drops anchor. And Ashtoreth is alone on board. He has already warned her that he means to make love to her—and says that if she doesn't like the notion she had better go to her cabin.

Ashtoreth does not mean to accept his caresses, but to teach him a lesson. He thinks that all American girls get and she is determined to make him change his mind. With a good deal of bravado she accompanies him to the stateroom deck.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

Ashtoreth slipped her hand in Smythe's.

"Come on!" she challenged.

But all the while she was wondering exactly what was going to happen.

And just how an Englishman acts when a girl laughs at his love making.

She imagined that English people were mightily dignified and she meant to humiliate Jack Smythe for saying that all American girls pined.

She'd show him!

"You're sure," he teased, "you hadn't rather go to bed?"

"Bed!" she echoed. "A night like this?"

He held her close against his side.

"You know," he whispered, "you're not going to slap me again. Because this time I shan't stand for it, my dear."

"No!" she retorted. "And what would you do about it?"

Suddenly it occurred to Ashtoreth that perhaps she was not doing a sporting thing. English people made such a fuss about being sporting.

Probably then she really oughtn't to go. No girl, she supposed, went up to the boat deck with a man, unless she meant to be kissed. Particularly on such a night.

"You know," Smythe was saying, "someone's said even an atheist half believes in a God by night. Did you ever see anything so perfect in your life? Why, the ocean's a silver sea!"

Ashtoreth sighed.

"It's heavenly," she whispered.

A moonlit mood was on her. After all, why not let Smythe kiss her? She'd be a dreadfully poor sport to let him think he might—and then get mad over it.

She glanced at him sideways. He did look extraordinarily like the Prince of Wales. Those little lines about his eyes. And his mouth...

"It's wonderful," he said, "what a night like this can do to a man. Why, I knew a misogynist once—he was a really good fellow. Lately, and despised them and all that sort of thing. And he took a cruise down here through the Indies—and fell in love with every woman on the ship!"

"A misogynist?" thought Ashtoreth, "must be a woman-hater." ... It was one of those 50-cent words Smythe talked about.

"Personally," continued Smythe, "I've always thought a misogynist was a queer bird. Women were obviously made to be loved."

"But—" Ashtoreth felt curiously tongue-tied. She wanted to say something about women being meant for finer things. But she hated to sound terribly prim and old-maidish. And she couldn't think of anything at all clever.

"If all women agreed with you," she said, "there wouldn't be any really good women would there? I mean, if we let all the men who want to, make love to us, we'd be a dreadfully tarnished lot. And we wouldn't be what men call 'good women' at all, would we?"

They had leaned over the rail, to watch the lights of St. Thomas twinkling, like distant fireflies across the water.

"Good!" repeated Smythe, slipping his arm across her shoulder. "Why, I suppose that depends upon your definition of good. Our wise George Bernard Shaw has something interesting to say on the subject. Goodness, says Shaw, in its popular British sense of self-denial, implies that man is vicious by nature. And that supreme goodness is supreme madness."

"The idea isn't confined to us British, you know. It's also an American notion. Frenchmen haven't any such conceptions. As for the Latin races—they believe that anything that is natural is good. I think so myself. Its natural to want to kiss a pretty girl. It is also natural for a girl to like to be kissed. Therefore it is good."

"It is supreme nonsense to believe that anything that is natural is wicked. Or even that self-denial is a virtue. Those are very pious notions. But they're most fearfully dull."

Ashtoreth, like most girls, believed that good things usually were stupid. And that wildly exciting things were more apt than not to be wrong. It was, she had found, a fairly safe way to look at life.

But Smythe made her feel childish and ignorant. She wished that it was Monty's arm across her shoulder. And Monty's lips against her hair. It would be such a relief not to have to be so dreadfully highbrow.

For months and months Ashtoreth had been pretending. Ever since she had come to work for Hollis Hart. Pretending to bookish knowledge and high ideals. And culture. And wealth. And all sorts of things.

There was that day she had tried to make Mr. Hart think she knew all about Egyptology and Cleopatra and scarabs. Well, it hadn't gotten her far. Mr. Hart thought now that she was just as common and cheap as Soda, most likely, s... Then, of course, there was Sadie. She was always trying to impress Sadie. ... And Mona. Mona thought she had been to boarding school. Not that Ashtoreth had directly implied any such thing. Only Mona picked up the notion somehow, and it seemed senseless to deny it. Mona thought, too, that she had read all sorts of books. Not, of course, that Ashtoreth had ever said so.

After all, though, could a girl ever be just herself? With anyone? Wouldn't it be perfectly insane to let anyone you cared the least thing about discover how silly and stupid you really were?

In her secret heart Ashtoreth believed that her ignorance would simply appall anyone who actually knew anything. Anyone really clever. Hollis Hart, for instance. Or Jack Smythe.

It was, really, a lot easier to be kissed than to get philosophical about it. If they went on talking about abstract good and evil, Jack would learn how stupid she was. Whereas, if she simply let him kiss her, he would discover her to be altogether desirable.

He drew her from the rail into the shadows.

"There are two chairs somewhere over here," he was saying. "I had the steward place them after dinner."

He put his arms around her, and held her close.

"You know," he whispered, "you've the softest skin in the world."

Then he kissed her arms, and brushed his lips to her neck, where her hair curled in little tendrils.

Matzie was awfully old-fashioned. Matzie always said you shouldn't give your life to a man unless you really and truly loved him and were going to marry him. But of course Matzie didn't know anything about such kisses as these! Mothers are so innocent—the poor dears. ... Ashtoreth melted softly in his arms.

In a moment he held her away from him.

"Damn!" he muttered. "There's somebody in that chair down there. A woman—she just coughed. Over there—behind the wireless!"

Ashtoreth's heart was beating wildly, and something in her throat pulsed like a little fluttering bird.

"Oh!" she gasped (and laughed a little, breathlessly).

He stretched her, with his hands on her shoulders.

"There's no sense," he admonished indulgently, "in being take-a-chance."

The woman in the deck chair had risen to her feet. She was all in white, and wore a white hat, like a turban. A long, gold tassel hung from her dress. And another from her turban, swaying as she walked. Nobody but Mona would have dressed like that.

She greeted them indolently. But, as she drew near, Ashtoreth saw that her eyes were smoldering.

Jack Smythe lounged uncomfortably away and muttered an imprecation.

Ashtoreth put her hand on his sleeve. But Mona struck his arm away and turned upon him in uncontrollable wrath.

(To Be Continued)

Mona's wild tirade reveals an astounding truth. Read the next chapter for the surprising facts about Jack Smythe.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY TO HAVE ANNUAL MEET

Notices were being sent out this week to members of the Outagamie County Agricultural society that the annual meeting of the group would be held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the office of J. M. Schmitt in the village of Hortonville. Officers will be elected and other routine business matters transacted. Notices of the meeting were sent out by Milford L. Steffen, secretary.

Dr. G. C. Hoyer is confined to his bed with illness.

"My Skin Was All Broken Out"

"I was so ashamed of my pimply and blotched skin that I felt like covering my face every time I met folks. It wasn't until I tried Rowles' Mentho Sulphur that I got any hope. Just three or four applications cleared my skin wonderfully."

Sulphur is a remarkable thing for clearing the skin, and as sulphur clears it, menthol heals the sore, broken tissue. This necessary two-fold action is what you get in Rowles' Mentho Sulphur. Long-standing cases of skin troubles are often cleared up in two or three days' time. Even fiery eczema yields to this marvelous combination. It brings instant relief from itching and smarting. Your druggist has Rowles' Sulphur in jars ready to use. Just try it! Be sure it's Rowles'.

"Men Of The South Pole"

Captain Scott, unaware that Amundsen had reached the South Pole, pluggd grimly on toward the bottom of the world. The ponies had died and the men of the party hauled the sledge. The morale of Scott's little party was wonderful. Dr. E. A. Wilson, surgeon and artist, cheered the others on with his philosophy, courage and gentle loving nature.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-25.

Capt. L. E. G. Oates was a twentieth century Bayard, heroically brave, without fear and without reproach.

Then there was cheerful Lieut. H. R. Bowers, whose spirits mounted the higher for every difficulty encountered.

Edgar Evans, a typical British seaman, was the fifth man of the party. For thirteen months nothing was heard of the gallant little band. Dead men's diaries tell us all there is to be known. The five men reached the Pole Jan. 18, 1912, to find a tent and a message in Amundsen's handwriting, "Welcome to 90 degrees!"

NIGHT WATCHMAN'S TALE POINTS TO MYSTERY IN CITY

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—A mystery story, the beginning of which was witnessed by Peter Laib, watchman at the Hatton lumber yards, and the end which yet remains unsolved, was reported Tuesday to the local police. Mr. Laib said that he had made the rounds of the yards on Monday night and was watching the street from the office building of the company on the corner of S. Pearl and Washington, when he noticed a man walking back and forth near the S. Pearl-st bridge. The man was either walking in the road or was crossing the street when a car approached.

Mr. Laib heard a cry and saw the man fall, he declared, though he was unable to ascertain whether or not the car struck him. Two men, he affirmed, then got out of the car and picked up the pedestrian, placing him in the rear of the car. After some difficulty in closing the doors and getting the man's legs inside the car drove away up S. Pearl-st. Thinking that the man was injured and was being taken to the hospital Mr. Laib reported next day to the police. No man was taken to either of the local hospitals and no further report has been made of an injury.

Captures Crook, Candy

"Aw, I didn't do nothin' much," stammered Joe Fadd, Jr., when he was summoned before Grover Whalen, New York's widely respected and feared police commissioner. But Joe, son of a Brooklyn policeman, was just being modest, upon receiving a box of candy as the commissioner's reward of valor. The boy had entered a store as the proprietor was being held up, ran out and gave the alarm, accompanied a policeman in a perilous automobile chase and then pointed out the bandit in a crowd of pedestrians.

Trans-Oceanic Planes Need Weather Service

Washington—(AP)—Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy's bureau of aeronautics, believes a comprehensive ocean weather service should be developed immediately to meet the needs of future trans-oceanic airship transportation.

He recommends that such a service be developed as an international undertaking, since weather affecting airship travel is not confined to national boundaries.

"Air currents are not so constant in location, direction and speed from day to day as are ocean currents," Moffett points out. "It is not sufficient, therefore, to chart the average location, direction and speed of air currents by months and years as we now do for regular oceanic shipping.

"It is necessary to know the location, direction and speed of winds at flying levels previous to the start of the flight, and to select the most favorable route on the basis of actual conditions.

"Once ocean weather service is developed to the point that an accurate forecast of the distribution of winds and weather over the ocean can be made each day, the schedules for airship travel can be made with great certainty.

To meet the needs of trans-oceanic air travel, reports from ships in the north Atlantic should be obtained three or four times daily, so that the boundaries between different upper wind currents and their velocity can be determined and followed with certainty, the Admiral says.

The reports should be speeded at approximately six hour intervals to correspond as closely as possible with the hours of observations in continental Europe and the United States.

Suitable equipment for measuring atmospheric conditions, similar to that now used on the navy's battleships and cruisers, should be installed on all ships at sea. That will eliminate inaccuracies which now arise frequently from personal estimates.

While Washington and New York now obtain weather reports from five or ten vessels at sea, it will be necessary to get such information from dozens of widely scattered ships in the future.

"Such a weather service would not only give advice to airship navigators concerning winds, but also would describe areas covered by fog or rain and give the locations of general storms, squalls or hurricanes so that the airship could give these violent conditions wide berth," Admiral Moffett says.

"The subject of proper radio channels to enable ships at sea to file their reports with shore observatories is a highly important one that needs immediate consideration. Reg- ular radio traffic from ships at sea is so unimpaired to make speedy transmission a difficult problem."

Newspaper Film Is One Of Best For Next Year

BY DAN THOMAS
Hollywood, Calif.—At least three of the films which will be released within the next month will be well worth seeing. "The Office Scandal" and "His Captive Woman" will be talking pictures, while "Sin Sister" will be the good old silent movie.

"The Office Scandal" is a newspaper story written by Jack James Meyer, whom you may remember as the writer of this column for a number of years. While it has its faults, "The Office Scandal" comes about as near to being an authentic newspaper film as I have seen—thanks to James Meyer's thorough knowledge of papers gained through more than 15 years' experience.

However, a perfect newspaper story just can't be filmed. Movie executives, in their ignorance of newspaper life, won't stand for it. They make pictures showing how they think newspapers should be run—not the way they are.

The cost of "The Office Scandal" is as good as could be found. Phyllis Haver, in the leading role, portrays a "sob sister" and does it well. She is just the type one would find on a paper. Raymond Hatton is the hard-boiled city editor, and how he can be hard-boiled! So can a lot of city editors I know. Margaret Livingston is a vampire who murdered her husband, necessitating much of the story centering around her.

It's pretty good, folks. You'll enjoy it.

"His Captive Woman," co-starring Dorothy Mackall and Milton Sills, also is woven around a murder. The story opens with Dorothy on trial for murdering her lover seven years previously. After the murder Dorothy escaped to a South Sea island. Sills, New York cop, was sent there to bring her back. During the return voyage they were shipwrecked and cast alone upon a desolate island where they lived for more than six years before being rescued. During this time, as might be expected, Sills and Miss Mackall fell in love with each other.

The only defense planned by Dorothy's attorney is the story of the seven year period to be told by Sills, the chief witness for the state. All of the courtroom scenes are in dialogue. But as Sills commences his story the scene shifts to the South Seas, picturing what he is supposed to be telling.

There is some beautiful photography in these island sequences, and some good acting too.

"Sin Sister," of a distinctly different type, is unique in that two-thirds of the entire film were made on one set, the interior of a deserted trading post. And, strangely enough, the entire film was "shot" in its natural sequence, a rare occurrence in Hollywood. Films usually are made without regard to sequence and are assembled later in the cutting room.

Nancy Carroll, as the daughter of a multi-millionaire, and Lawrence Gray, her fiance, play the leading roles. The story opens with the millionaire, his daughter, her fiance, a fanatical evangelist, and a small-time vaudeville song and dance team bound for Seattle from Alaska.

While enroute a sudden storm traps the boat in the ice. A passing trader rights them and takes the party to a deserted trading post, leaving them there with a small supply of food. The mental reaction of the six companions is told vividly in the remaining reels.

The millionaire, a blustering bully, because a craver coward who is easily tricked by the evangelist into giving her all of his money. The evangelist, on the verge of insanity, becomes an atheist. The millionaire's daughter, a refined society bud, becomes slovenly and vicious tempered, while her fiance for the first time becomes a real man.

Pile Suffering Quickly Relieved The Page Combination Way

COMBINATION TREATMENT WITH INTERNAL TABLETS QUICKLY CONQUERS SEVEREST PAINS

Thousands of Former Sufferers Who Had Abandoned All Hope of Relief Have Been Freed of Pain by This Original, Scientific Method

Piles, which authorities state is one of the most prevalent afflictions of the human race, is no longer always regarded as a serious trouble. Unfortunately as they are, sparing neither old nor young, man, woman nor child; pains from piles are usually easily and pleasantly banished by a new scientific treatment.

To this good news is added the information that the new method has been thoroughly tested and proved before such announcement could be published. In thousands of cases where victims have suffered for years and frankly given up all hope of relief, this marvelously simple method has freed them so quickly of pains from piles that they were positively amazed.

"We are so thoroughly convinced of the merits of our treatment," says the E. R. Page Company, of Marshall, Michigan, the originator of this method, "that we do not hesitate to let those suffering with the most aggravated cases try our treatment without risk or expense to themselves. In fact, we have purposely sought and found such cases as were most painful—some who had been suffering well over thirty years—and persuaded them to try our method. From every nook and corner of the country, reports reach us daily telling of the relief brought.

"This is what has encouraged us to carry on the work—the knowledge that we were giving the world something that would ease the pain and suffering, the ill health and unhappiness, of so many thousands of victims."

Real Trouble Well Concealed
The Page Internal Tablet Combination Treatment, as this new method is called, quickly strikes at the root of the evil. The real cause must be treated before the slightest hope of relief can be entertained. That terrible burning, that miserable smarting, that unbearable itching and in some cases, alarming loss of blood is obviously not the cause but merely an effect of the condition which so manifests itself.

Then, logically, the means which must be taken to drive the cause away should include a treatment that attacks the root. While this treatment is taking effect, it usually gives immediate relief from the attending pain and prevents the local irritation and aggravation which makes piles so uncomfortable. This the Page Treatment actually does for it is a combination idea which treats the condition as it relieves the suffering.

A Welcome Announcement
Thousands of men, whose efficiency in the business and professional world has been seriously impaired because of the constant discomfort and pain from piles, will welcome news that such a method as the Page Treatment is at last obtainable. Thousands of women, whose daily duties keep them constantly active and therefore in constant pain, will hail the Page Treatment with unalloyed joy. If these sufferers actively avail themselves of this wonderful discovery, it is reasonable to assume that the percentage of pile sufferers whose pain is intense and agonizing will shortly become greatly diminished.

Despaired of Being Helped— Treatment Did the Work

L. H. Wallace, of 707 West Chestnut St., Louisville, Ky., relates his experience in the following brief letter of praise. He says: "Some time ago I was bothered with pile pains so badly that I despaired of ever being helped. About that time, however, I saw your advertisement in some paper and sent for a trial treatment. It helped so much that I got a full treatment and I can say that I have not been bothered with pile pains since. That was more than a year ago."

Woman Freed of Long Agony by Unique New Method

After suffering untold pain and constant discomfort for 14 years, Mrs. Joe W. Kelly, of Asheville, N. C., tells how she was freed of pile pain by the Page Combination Treatment. In her letter she says: "I am glad to say that your Pile Treatment has entirely rid me of this terrible distress and pain. I had suffered agony for 14 years. Now I feel like a new woman. Thankful I am for this wonderful relief, and I will tell everyone whom I know to be a sufferer about this wonderful treatment."

Relieved After 32 Years

After 32 years, A. L. Goldstein of Cambridge Springs, Pa., is rid of pain from piles from which he has been my pile suffering from which I have been troubled for the past 32 years. I can say to you that all the discoveries of this century do not compare with this great discovery to free the millions of thousands of people suffering the torture of those pains."

That a new discovery, based on established scientific principles, is ending pile pains for thousands of men and women, is revealed by the tremendous volume of grateful letters received by the distributors of this treatment from people who have tried it. The big problem which science had undertaken to solve in its efforts to end this distressing and almost universal complaint was that of permanent relief from pile pains.

A number of sufferers, it was generally known, had formerly been able to obtain temporary relief only to find the trouble returning with increased discomfort at frequent intervals. The question to answer was, therefore, how to rid sufferers of the agonizing pains forever.

Indication was not lacking as to the origin of piles. It was an accepted fact that the local discomfort was merely a manifestation of other trouble, far more deeply rooted. Once the origin is reached and effectively combated, it is but reasonable to assume that the pains from piles will leave forever.

Two Typical Cases
As an example of how quickly the Page Internal Tablet Combination Treatment ends distress and pain from piles, even in extreme cases, a letter from Mrs. L. L. Buckner of Kansas City, Mo., follows. She writes: "One week ago yesterday, I was in bed, helpless. Today I have cleaned my face, cared for my children, and feel fine. I feel sure I would have been dead if relief had not come when it did. Now I do not know I ever had pile pains."

"I had suffered for five years with itching, bleeding and protruding piles," writes Mrs. Adeline Horsley of LaPorte, Ind. "About a year ago, when I felt I could not stand the pain from them, I sent for the Page Treatment. Today I am not bothered any more. Although I only used about a half of the treatment, the pain and agony have disappeared."

Brief Treatment Ends Long Years of Suffering

That pile pains that have lasted for years can be frequently eliminated quickly by a new scientific treatment is clearly demonstrated by the experience of Louis Bathke, an Algonquin, Wisconsin, man. Thirteen years of suffering was endured before Mr. Bathke determined to try the Page Internal Tablet Combination Treatment. The surprising and highly gratifying results are shown by Mr. Bathke's letter: "I want to let you know that I have been suffering with pile pains for 13 years. A year or so ago I learned of your new method. I used one large and small size treatment received last spring and now I find myself free from pains and distress. Thanks very much. I shall recommend your treatment to any sufferer from piles as it means sure relief from painful suffering."

Merit of This New Scientific Combination Method

A decided departure from the usual promotional custom of business concerns has been inaugurated by the E. R. Page Co., of Marshall, Michigan. This company has perfected a new scientific treatment for pile's painful distress, the success of which has been instantaneous, as letters received from thousands of former sufferers confirm.

At a recent meeting of the directors, a policy was adopted that would place this remarkable treatment in the hands of sufferers everywhere without the slightest risk or expense. In a formal statement issued by the company, when this measure was voted upon and passed, may be seen the reason for this unusual move.

A Novel Policy
"Many concerns," the statement reads, "spend thousands of dollars annually to advertise their products to the public. For the most part, these products must be bought and paid for on faith. If the purchaser is dissatisfied, it is often optional with the seller as to whether he will give the customer the satisfaction to which he is entitled."

"The idea of this company is to keep our advertising down to the very minimum that will give our product sufficient publicity. We prefer to give our patrons the benefits of this expenditure. Therefore, we agree to send every person afflicted with piles a trial package of our new Page Internal Tablet Combination Treatment. This package costs the sufferer nothing. But we feel that the money used to introduce our product is well spent."

So effective is the Page Combination Treatment for Pains from Piles that in many cases the trial package alone suffices to end the trouble. —that it proves our good faith with sufferers in not asking them to spend one cent until they have demonstrated the merits of the Page method to their own complete satisfaction."

Merit Justifies Plan
The Page Treatment is based on purely scientific facts that are common knowledge in professional circles. These facts prove that piles in themselves are not a cause but an effect—the natural indication of other trouble inside.

Science has also determined what the real cause of pile pains is, and this new method, employing internal tablets in combination with a bowel regulator and a soothing ointment for external application, has clearly demonstrated its ability to remove in many instances the pain and anguish from piles. Once this is accomplished, it is only natural that the sufferer will have reason for rejoicing.

SCIENCE FINDS WAY TO TREAT PILE PAINS

Treatment Corrects Conditions
That Cause Trouble—Then
All Pain Ends

"There is nothing mysterious or magical about our combination treatment," says an official of the Page Company. "It is just a logical campaign directed against the painful results of piles and those things which cause them. This campaign is directed both internally and externally. Not only are the pile pains relieved quickly in most instances but when properly treated they do not return."

The treatment being discussed was the Page Internal Tablet Combination Treatment, which has so successfully rid thousands of pile suffering and agony. It consists of three medicines. There is a tablet which, when taken according to the directions, helps the body eliminate its poisons and prepares the system for the fight which is designed to do away with the pains and end the suffering. In addition to this tablet, there is, second, a pleasant tasting tablet which was originated by the Page Company chemists to wage its war against the disorder which results in the formation of piles.

To end the suffering and intense pain, while the two tablets are doing their work, a soothing, cooling, pleasant ointment has been included. This, when applied, seems usually to stop the pain at once. It has been prepared in such a way that everything obnoxious and unpleasant to its application is avoided and it can be applied with the greatest ease.

To the sufferer's surprise and delight, this system usually not only brings relief practically at once, but stops permanently the physical suffering which results from pile troubles.

THIS TREATMENT PROVES PILE SUFFERERS CAN BE RELIEVED OF THEIR AGONY

Who Spent Years Perfecting Treatment Which Rids Humanity of Pile Pains and Suffering

The original method of treatment, adopted by the E. R. Page Company, proves conclusively the sound reasoning of those who discovered it. Thousands of sufferers throughout the nation have learned by dreadful experience that to actually be relieved of pains from piles forever, the condition or physical disorder of the tumors must be corrected. Piles constitute an organic condition, and because of this the logical treatment of pain and distress from piles is through this method; by striking at the seat of the trouble.

ORIGINATOR OF METHOD TELLS HOW IT WORKS

Vigorous Attack on Condition Causing Suffering

Any treatment, if it is to effectively combat that condition and end suffering forever, must be aimed to strike at the seat of the trouble. This is the contention of officials of the E. R. Page Company, who have originated a combination treatment, which results have proven to be very effective and thorough.

"We contend," said one of these officials, "that pile pains are manifestations—the symptoms, you might say—of a certain physical condition. If we are to successfully end pile suffering, it is necessary that we go further than merely to stop the pain only temporarily."

"We must combat the disorder. We must stop the pain and suffering by external and internal means. This has been done in many instances. It is on this basis that the combination treatment is founded."

"The combination treatment is made up of three parts. There is a tablet that helps the bowels to function properly. Poisons are eliminated by this means. Then, in addition, there are the tablets which, when taken internally, tend to correct the condition which is responsible for the beginning of piles. And lastly, there is the soothing, cooling, relieving ointment which, when applied to the piles, seems to make pain vanish almost instantly."

"When it is considered that our treatment fights the condition so thoroughly, both internally and externally, it is no wonder that thousands of men and women who have been sufferers for years are finally relieved from pain and accompanying distress by this method."

"Because it is so thorough in its work and so efficiently cleanses the body of those things that create piles, the cure of the pile trouble is stopped. We are sure we have a wonderful treatment as hundreds and hundreds of people have written us."

Pains From Piles Quickly Yield to New Treatment

Enthusiasm for the benefits he derived from the treatment induced Curtis C. Oliver, of Forest City, Pa., to send a joyous letter of praise to the E. R. Page Co., Marshall, Michigan. His missive reads: "Your treatment accomplished wonders for me. I suffered with pains from piles for 25 years and one of your small trial treatments was all that I needed."

Piles Are Symptoms
Authorities know that piles themselves are but symptoms or indications of a physical disorder that must be corrected—if the piles are to be prevented.

The people responsible for the E. R. Page Internal Tablet Combination Treatment recognized this fact many years ago. They sought a type of treatment which would work internally. They have been exceedingly successful, as thousands of people who have been rid of suffering by this method will testify.

The E. R. Page Company, each day, is swamped with letters from all parts of North America; these letters are from former afflicted persons who thank them for not only complete relief from suffering but express sincere, heartfelt thanks for this freedom. There are more than 33,000 of similar letters in the files of the company today.

This Method Successful
The success of this internal treatment can be attributed to its being founded upon medical facts. There is no guesswork about it, as the fact that it accomplishes all that is claimed for it clearly demonstrates. The method has been worked out with great care and study; each part of the treatment has a specific thing to accomplish.

The bowel regulator—just a small tablet—puts the system in good order, so that it can readily combat the pain which results in the intense suffering. The tablets are pleasant tasting and were originated as a means to the end of relieving the appearance of the piles themselves. That it does its work is attested to by the thousands of letters received from people who have been rid of pains from piles by this method.

Carefully Planned
To relieve the pain and suffering while the internal tablets are doing their part, a pleasing ointment has been created. This ointment has been packed so that all the obnoxious, objectionable features of application are avoided. It frequently stops the pain almost at once. People who credit the Page Treatment with having relieved them forever call it "the magical ointment."

The combination treatment leaves nothing undone. It strikes directly at the root of the condition giving immediate relief from suffering in most instances. It goes even further, for thousands will testify that it stopped their agony and distress for all time. It usually stops pain almost at once and even after the suffering ends—the internal tablets are waging their war against the things that cause piles.
